$400,000 Addition Sought ...

Judiciary Unit To Ask Penal Program Boost

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Judiciary Committee will ask the Appropriations Committee to add more than $400,000 in state funds to the budget request of the Department of Correctional Services for penal program improvements.

Largest item in the list of improvements approved by the committee was $193,000 to increase salaries for guards at the Penal Complex.

That infusion of funds — together with a requested increase in the classification of prison officers in the state pay plan — would boost the starting salary from $569 to $645 a month.

Under the new pay scale, guards would be salaried at nearly $680 a month after their first six months of employment.

Warden Charles Wolff said the new salary level would make it easier to recruit officers, and provide them with "a more fair and equitable" wage scale.

The Judiciary Committee's recommendations will be presented to the Appropriations Committee in the form of appropriations bills.

Included in the package is the earlier approved $14,340,000 capital construction plan to be funded over a four-year period ending in fiscal 1977-78.

Some of Thursday's programmatic additions were approved despite a lack of support from Correctional Services Director Victor Walker.

Walker cautioned the committee to hold off on some funding or scale it down, citing concerns that the department may not be able to wisely use the funds immediately and holding out hope that future federal funding could supply the same dollars.

"We're ramming money down people's throats," Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh protested.

But a number of committee members said the programs should be undertaken now.

A $93,000 addition — all but $10,000 of it in the form of federal funds — was recommended for educational release programs.

A $75,000 state appropriation — with possible matching funds from federal sources — was approved to begin to build a staff for the proposed new diagnostic and evaluation complex.

Increases for work release programs and the addition of parole officers were already built into the department's budget request.

The committee approved a $100,000 addition for regulation of county regional jails and $45,000 for staff expansion in the department's central office.

Some additions proposed by the committee staff and the legislative fiscal analyst's staff were either reduced or eliminated.

The capital construction package includes $140,000 in overall planning funds; $1.8 million for the diagnostic and evaluation complex to be located at a renovated structure at the Lincoln Regional Center; $7.4 million for a new medium-minimum security prison in Omaha, and $5 million for improvements, including new housing, at the State Penitentiary in Lincoln.

DST Is Effective Sunday

By United Press International
Except for Hawaii, Alaska and parts of some states, Americans will go on daylight saving time this weekend.

The move, effective Sunday 2 a.m. local time, is part of the administration's efforts to save energy. The enabling legislation passed by Congress will keep DST in force until October, 1975.

Under the new law states that have two time zones may exempt one of them in order to establish uniform time throughout the state.

Other state legislatures can petition the president to exempt them from DST on grounds exemption would save energy or that it would constitute an extreme hardship. However, with the exception of Arizona, the federal authorities were not expected to grant such exemptions unless the state legislatures produced an overwhelming case.

Arizona Gov. Jack Williams has asked for exemption for his entire state, one of 14 with split time zones.

Williams said Arizona is in the western part of the mountain time zone and no energy would be saved by shifting to DST.

The governor said the hottest time on the day in Arizona is in the afternoon and a time shift would mean changing an hour of lower energy use early in the day for an hour of higher use in the evening.

In Indiana, 80 of the state's 92 counties will not be affected by the change.

The Indiana situation is not contingent on the legislative action. Gov. Otis Bowen said in a news conference that "here in Indiana on Jan. 6, 80 counties on EST will remain on the same time and 2 counties on CST will go to CDT so they will be on the same time as the other 80 counties."

In other states legislators prepared action to meet the new federal directives.

Dayan To Offer Partial Pullback

By The Associated Press

An Israeli newspaper said Thursday Defense Minister Moshe Dayan would propose an Israeli withdrawal from the Suez Canal when he meets with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in Washington.

The well-informed daily Maariv said Dayan would offer Kissinger an Israeli pullback to the Mitla and Giddi passes — about 30 miles from the waterway — from positions occupied since the 1967 war.

The paper said Dayan's proposal would also include Israeli insistence on an Egyptian police force to replace the 2nd and 3rd armies on the eastern bank of the canal, and a buffer between the two rival forces, policed by United Nations emergency forces.

Dayan would also propose reopening the canal and the repatriation of Egypt's Arab population living in towns along the waterway, the paper said. Israel feels this will reduce the chances of another possible Arab assault.

Israeli Defense Ministry sources said Dayan hoped to learn from Kissinger during talks in Washington Friday the extent of Soviet support for Egypt's policy at the Geneva talks. Cairo has called for an Israeli pullback deep into the Sinai Desert and a strong Egyptian military presence in the sandy wasteland.

Israeli officials said the government was optimistic that Dayan would find broad support from Kissinger on Israel's views for disengagement along the Suez front.

Dayan did not mention the Maariv proposal to newsmen upon his departure for Washington. But he did tell Egypt to maintain the cease-fire or face renewed fighting.

He told airport newsmen in Tel Aviv that daily shooting incidents along the Egyptian front were "a matter of high policy in Cairo."

"This wildness will not help the Egyptians achieve any improvement in their positions. I could end up just the opposite."

Dayan departed several hours after the Israeli military command announced its highest daily casualty toll since the October Middle East war.

Three Israeli soldiers were killed and two wounded in an artillery duel with Syrian gunners on the Golan Heights Wednesday while eight men were wounded in skirmishes on the Egyptian front, a military spokesman in Tel Aviv said.

The Israeli military command reported artillery and light weapons fire along the Suez front Thursday and said two Israeli soldiers were wounded.

It also denied foreign reports that Israel had agreed to unilaterally withdraw from the Sinai peninsula. "It's simply not true," a spokesman said. "Nobody has withdrawn anywhere."

A United Nations' spokesman in Cairo reported a U.N. soldier was shot and wounded while guarding a U.N. supply dump in the northeastern Egyptian town of Ismailia.

Shetlands Oil Strike Reported

LONDON (AP) — British Petroleum and Ranger Oil of Canada said Thursday they have made an "encouraging" strike northeast of Scotland's Shetland Islands.

Oil industry sources predicted the strike will be a major one because of its proximity to proven finds, but urged caution until further testing had been carried out.

The zone in which the BP-Ranger consortium reported striking oil is considered one of the largest and most promising oil-bearing structures in the North Sea. It is located near major fields already discovered northeast of the Shetlands.

$1,000 Thrown Out With Trash

Buenos Aires (UPI) — Roberto Gonzalez threw $1,000 out with the garbage but got the money back, thanks to an honest trash collector.

Gonzalez, a telephone company employee, and his wife told the city garbage collection service that a package containing the money was inadvertently discarded.

Later one of the garbage collectors found a package containing the money and it was returned to Gonzalez.

Kissinger Uses Blunt Language

... World Depression Possible

©The New York Times

San Clemente, Calif. — President Nixon will make a personal effort to persuade major oil-producing and oil-consuming nations to band together to ease the energy crisis, Secretary of State Kissinger announced Thursday.

At a news conference in the presidential compound here, Kissinger said about 20 countries would be involved and that the effort would begin next week.

Unless some international approach could be worked out, the secretary warned in unusually blunt language, a worldwide depression could result.

For that reason, he said, the industrial nations would be committing economic suicide if they tried to solve the problem individually.

Although he supplied few details, Kissinger said Nixon would probably make "an approach to the various leaders concerned."

Not Abroad

Gerald L. Warren, a deputy White House press secretary, said at a briefing later that Nixon's initiative on energy would not require travel abroad, leaving the impression that the President intended to communicate with foreign leaders through ambassadors or by personal message.

In a speech in London Dec. 13, Kissinger proposed that the United States, Canada, Japan and Europe join with the oil-producing nations within three months to form an "energy action group."

By promoting collaboration instead of unbridled competition, Kissinger said then, the energy crisis could be turned into "the economic equivalent of the Sputnik challenge of 1957."

Thus far, little has come of the proposal, as the industrial nations have focused on the short-term problem of procuring enough oil to meet their immediate needs.

Gas Price Climbing; 6-7¢ Jump On Way

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Charting gas prices at 10 Lincoln stations Thursday produced a line as jagged as the city's skyline, according to a telephone survey by The Lincoln Star.

The high point on the chart was produced by Chuck's Standard at 3305 O St., where a gallon of regular cost 52.9 cents.

Valleys were produced by the U-Save station at 84th and Hwy. 6 and the Imperial station at 3000 Cornhusker Hwy., where a gallon of regular cost only 42.9.

Those valleys, however, apparently will soon disappear. The manager of the Imperial station said that he would boost the price of regular and premium by at least six cents Friday morning.

Hike Coming Soon
George Watters, director of Nebraska Petroleum Marketers, Inc., said that the price hike of about 6 or 7 cents per gallon can be expected at all stations in the near future.

Watters, noting that Amoco, the marketing and refining branch of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, increased its wholesale prices by 5.8 cents Thursday, said that "over the long haul" the prices charged by major oil companies will stay "relatively close."

Major oil companies will probably continue to seek additional price hikes in the next few weeks, he said.

Watters said that when a major oil company is allowed to increase the prices it charges, the retail gas stations can pass this increase along. In addition, he said, wholesale companies can add one-half cent and retail gas stations can add another cent to cover cost of increased overhead and lower gas allocations.

'Not Really Down'

At the Crest station at 1545 Cornhusker Hwy., where regular was priced at 49.6 cents and premium at 52.6, a spokesman said that although "a few cars drove up, saw the prices and drove on ... business is not really down."

The manager of the Imperial station said that he expected the boost in prices to slow business for about 30 days, but that by the end of three months the station would be selling as much gas as now.

Manager Don Svehla at Don's Mobile Service, 70th and O St., said the station is "What you will see" in the weeks ahead, Kissinger said, "is a spelling out of the ideas that the President asked me to put forward in London and the initiative will probably be undertaken at the presidential level."

Kissinger answered questions on a large number of subjects at the news conference.

After four days of talks with the President, the secretary was to return to Washington Thursday night.

Among the points Kissinger made were these:

—He said the results of the Israeli election would not retard negotiations on disengagement of troops in the Middle East, because of "a broad consensus" in Israel "that those talks can proceed even before a new government is formed."

—He repeated that Nixon is committed to trips to the Soviet Union and Japan in 1974, and is likely to go to Europe as soon as work on declarations of joint principles can be completed — probably in the spring.

—He rejected with some heat the suggestion that he was conducting foreign policy independently of the President. Particularly when Watergate is testing constitutional processes, he said, the departments of government could not be run as "the personal fiefdoms" of their leaders.

—Asked whether Nixon could be a "leader of the free world" while under unprecedented attack at home, Kissinger replied that he thinks "the President can do it, and I believe that his foreign policy will be recognized as valid in the years ahead."

—He did not expect Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn's new novel, "The Gulag Archipelago," which describes conditions in Soviet prison camps, to interrupt progress toward a detente with Moscow, because American policy in that area has never been predicated on "moral approval" of the Soviet domestic system.

charging 48.8 cents for regular and 52.8 for premium.

He said he didn't think the price hike would hurt business.

"I won't lose any customers. I don't look for a big decrease in driving," he said.

Other Prices

Prices charged for gas at other stations around Lincoln were:

Pioneer 66, 48th and Pioneer, 46.4 for regular and 50.4 for premium.

Thompson's Skelly, 48th and Holdrege, 47.4 for regular and 51.4 for premium.

Shaffer's DX, 21st and G, 48.4 for regular and 52.4 for premium.

Apco Oil, 2510 S. 48th, 48.1 for regular and 52.1 for premium.

Dick's Conoco, 9th and R, 44.9 for regular and 48.9 for premium.

Spokesmen at several of the stations said that they were waiting for word from their suppliers and that price hikes might be forthcoming.

When the attendant at the U-Save station, 84th and Hwy. 6, was asked if the stations planned to raise its prices, he responded, "Well, the boss isn't here and I don't know."

"Say, I've got a lot of customers waiting, I've got to go. Bye now."

At the time the station was selling regular for 42.9 and premium for 44.9.

Producer Of 'Deep Throat' Fined $5,000

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The New Yorker who produced "Deep Throat" was fined $5,000 Thursday in federal court for illegally sending an obscene film across state lines to Kansas City.

Phillip Parisi, 57, Brooklyn, pleaded no contest to the indictment. Judge Richard M. Duncan imposed the maximum fine, but the penalty can go up to $10,000 and 10 years in prison for a second offense.

Judge Duncan did not see "Deep Throat," but relied on a written summary by an assistant U.S. district attorney to rule that it was hardcore pornography.

New York Times
News Summary

(c) New York Times News Service

Ottawa — Canada indicated plans to increase its export tax on oil shipments to the United States by almost 200%, a move that would cost American importers nearly $120 million a month. The stated purpose of the tax, now $2.20 a barrel, is to shield Canada, the United States' largest foreign oil supplier, from soaring world oil prices. (More on Page 3.)

Far East Effects Serious

Tokyo — The oil crisis has begun to have serious effects in the Far East, where Japan is cutting its enormous exports by 15 to 25%, thus imperiling the economies of half a dozen Asian nations heavily dependent on Japanese supplies. Japanese officials fear the export cut will intensify growing resentment of Japan's economic dominance in Southeast Asia and endanger Japan's delicate relations with China.

Worldwide Depression Feared

San Clemente — Warning that the oil shortage could lead to a worldwide depression, Secretary of State Kissinger said President Nixon would make a personal effort to persuade major oil-producing and oil-consuming nations to band together to ease the crisis. (More on Page 1.)

Opus Dei's Influence Wanes

Madrid — Two weeks after the assassination of Spanish Premier Luis Carrero Blanco, his successor, Carlos Arias

Navarro, formed a new cabinet reflecting his own conservative political views and devotion to authority and order. In a major realignment, Arias eliminated the influence of the Catholic lay movement, the so-called Opus Dei "technocrats," who had led Spain's economic upsurge for 15 years and sought to end the country's economic and political isolation.

10-Gallon Limit Voluntary

Washington — William E. Simon, the federal energy administrator, said most major oil companies had agreed to encourage service stations to limit sales to 10 gallons a customer, but it was unclear just how effective their efforts might be. (More on Page 3.)

Social Security Hike Signed

San Clemente — President Nixon signed a bill that will increase Social Security benefits by 11% for 30 million Americans and increase the Social Security taxes for everyone earning more than $10,800 a year. (More on Page 2.)

Bank Solicited Payoffs

New York — The National Bank of North America, a large New York-based financial institution, allegedly solicited and received payoffs from a shipping company in return for more than $7 million in illegal loans, according to documents filed in federal court in New York. The papers charge that the bank tried to conceal the loans by falsifying its books.

Social Security Increase Signed

... One Provision Is 'Most Unfortunate,' Nixon Says

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Despite what he termed one "most unfortunate" provision, President Nixon signed into law Thursday an 11 per cent increase in Social Security benefits.

To help finance the hike, the new law imposes higher Social Security taxes on wage-earners making more than $10,800 a year — an increase that takes effect immediately.

Nixon, in a statement, labeled the Social Security legislation as far-reaching and extremely important and noted:

"With these increases, Social Security benefits will have risen by 68.5 per cent since this administration took office nearly five years ago."

In another action, Nixon also signed a $5.78 billion foreign aid appropriation for that ends June 30. That was about $1 billion less than the administration had requested.

Under the new Social Security law, average monthly benefits for a retired individual will jump from $161 to $181 and for a couple from $276 to $310.

The increases will be parceled out in two stages. A benefit boost of 7 per cent is due with March checks to be distributed April 3. The other 4 per cent will be reflected in June checks payable July 3.

Because it takes about four months to make check-

Examples Of Increases Given

Washington (AP) — These are examples of the increases in monthly Social Security retirement payments resulting from the bill signed Thursday by President Nixon:

	Present	March	June
Minimum individual	$ 84.50	$ 90.40	$ 93.80
Minimum couple	$126.80	$135.60	$140.80
Average individual	$161	$173	$181
Average couple	$276	$296	$310
Maximum individual	$274	$293	$304
Maximum couple	$411	$440	$456

The March check is due April 3, the June check July 3. The bill also increases the maximum payroll tax paid each by the employer and worker from $631.80 to $772.20 per year.

tabulating computer adjustments, the Social Security Administration said it might not be able to pay the 7 per cent increase in March checks and would catch up a month later in that case.

The new law also boosts the wage base on which workers and their employers each pay a 5.85 per cent Social Security tax. The amount of annual earnings subject to tax was $10,800 in 1972 and will jump to $13,200 this year. Before the new law, it would have risen to $12,600.

Although there will be no change in the tax rate, the maximum tax payable will be increased from $631.80 last year to $772.20 in 1974.

Minimum monthly Social Security benefits are increased by the law Nixon signed to $93.80 from $84.50. The maximum will go from $274 to $304 for an individual, from $411 to $456 for a couple.

Nixon complained that the law would delay until next Dec. 31 the effective date of social service regulations issued recently by the secretary of health, education and welfare. The President said it would impede the administration's effort "to see that services are concentrated on those who are truly needy rather than permitting funds to be spent with little regard for genuine need."

Nixon made no comment on an estimate that the higher benefits will far outstrip higher tax receipts to add $800 million to the budget deficit for the current fiscal year.

The foreign aid appropriation includes the full amount, $2.2 billion, Nixon sought for military aid to Israel following the October war.

Premiums Rise
40¢ A Month
For Medicare

WASHINGTON (AP) — Caspar W. Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, approved on Thursday a 40-cent-a-month increase in optional Medicare insurance premiums covering doctor bills.

The 6.4 per cent boost to $6.70 a month beginning July 1 will cost 22.5 million aged and disabled Medicare beneficiaries an additional $108 million a year.

The Social Security Administration attributed the premium hike to increased use of physician services, rising costs and use of hospital outpatient services and a trend toward more expensive services.

EVANS HOME... not San Clemente.

Woman Offers IRS
Her $12,000 Home

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Mrs. Winston P. Evans says she's tired of government tax incursions on her pocketbook and even more weary of tax law manipulation by top officials. So she says she wants to take a tip provided by President Nixon and donate her $12,000 home to the government as a tax writeoff.

"We feel this man, the President, has gone as far as he can go with this San Clemente business," Mrs. Evans said Thursday.

"Nixon doesn't feel that my husband or myself should have more money than himself. It's ridiculous that with his salary he paid what he did in taxes."

The President and his wife have said they will donate to the government following their deaths the $1.5 million San Clemente estate. Under tax law, that entitles Nixon to deductions for charitable contributions.

Mrs. Evans said she will give her mortgaged, two-story frame home to the government, too.

"I want to hear what the Internal Revenue Service has to say about this," said Mrs. Evans, a carpenter's wife. "We're just one of many middle income people caught in a costs spiral and wage status quo. There's got to be a point where this stops."

"When he decides he should give us his property so we can pay for it, he's had enough exemptions."

Daniel T. Maggs, IRS district director, said if accepted by the government, Mrs. Evans' home would qualify for a charitable contribution tax deduction.

But, he said, "it would present some sort of a problem — it's not an unusual thing, but it's complicated to compute the deduction."

Mrs. Evans said even if the government accepted her offer, she'd have a problem.

"The mortgage company might not like it," she said.

Stores In Britain
Lit With Candles

LONDON (AP) — Britons settled down to live with the power crisis Thursday, shopping in candle-lit stores and working in unheated offices as if born to it.

The industrial crisis that has forced Britain into a three-day work week and idled tens of thousands appeared forgotten, at least in central London, as housewives jammed the department stores for traditional New Year's sales.

"Worried?" remarked one shopper. "Of course I'm worried. But I'm damned if I'm going to make things worse by staying at home and grumbling. I'm here to spend some money and enjoy it."

But the crisis had its bite. London streets, once among the world's safest, were half-darkened and eerie. Mortgage and loan companies made plans to revise payment schemes for their customers. Hopeful travel agencies stepped up advertising to maintain summer vacation bookings. The crunch seemed still ahead.

Wide sections of industry were half-idle. The government announced that 729,000 workers were unemployed as of Thursday as a direct result of the short week.

This figure did not include the thousands who did not register for unemployment because they were being paid, at least for the present, although they were not at work.

Nor did it include the 490,000 jobless before the crisis began in mid-December with the Arab oil embargo and labor slowdowns in the coal mines and railways.

Hopes of early settlements to put Britain back to normal working died Wednesday when talks with the government broke down on both fronts.

The miners' slowdown has severely curtailed the production of power and the train slowdown hampers delivery of coal to power stations in addition to crippling commuter traffic.

The reason for both slowdowns is the government's insistence that no union can breach the pay code limiting wage increases. The government has branded as excessive the raises demanded by the miners' and train engineers' unions.

Government officials said the three-day week was likely to continue at least into February, bringing continued disruption to commuter rail traffic, ever lower coal stocks, maximum voltage reductions at power stations and, for many, three-day pay packets.

Opposition party chiefs reacted angrily.

The Labor party leader, Harold Wilson, accused Prime Minister Edward Heath of politicking and "petulance" and told him to salvage the economy by reaching agreement with the miners regardless of his seven per cent anti-inflation curbs on pay hikes.

Liberal leader Jeremy Thorpe urged a generous settlement and said Heath's economic policy was "in ruins."

But the man in the street went about his business quietly.

A furrier in Chelsea's King's Road summed up the carry-on spirit in a hand-printed notice displayed in its show window: "Open by electric power, by candle power and by will power."

The government's emergency regulations to save fuel limit the use of electricity in nonessential stores to six half-days per week. Pharmacies are exempted, but hairdressers must get their clients out of the hairdryers by noon, wet or dry.

Judge Drops Indictment Against 12 'Weathermen'

Chicago (UPI) — U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman Thursday dismissed a four-year-old indictment against 12 members of the "Weatherman" faction of the Students for a Democratic Society charged with leading the riotous "days of rage" through Chicago streets in 1969.

Hoffman acted on a government request which noted that a recent Supreme Court decision barring electronic surveillance without a court order would have hampered prosecution of the case.

Hoffman, who became acquainted with Weatherman actions during the 1969-70 "Chicago seven" trial, said that in view of the high court's ruling, "the government's motion cannot be resisted."

The indictment charged that the defendants crossed state lines, "traveled, made speeches, published articles and made specific plans" for the disturbances at the SDS offices in Chicago.

Indicted were Mark Rudd, 25, Maplewood, N.J.; Bernardine Dohrn, 30, New York; Michael Spiegel, New York; Jeffrey Jones, 25, Sylmar, Calif.; William Ayers, 28, Chicago; Kathy Boudin, New York; Howard Machtinger, 26, New York; and Terry Robbins, 25, New York.

Other defendants were Linda Sue Evans, Fort Dodge, Iowa; Judy Clark, 24, Chicago; John Jacobs, 25, Detroit; and Lawrence Weiss, 25, Detroit.

African River
Floods; 8,000
Left Homeless

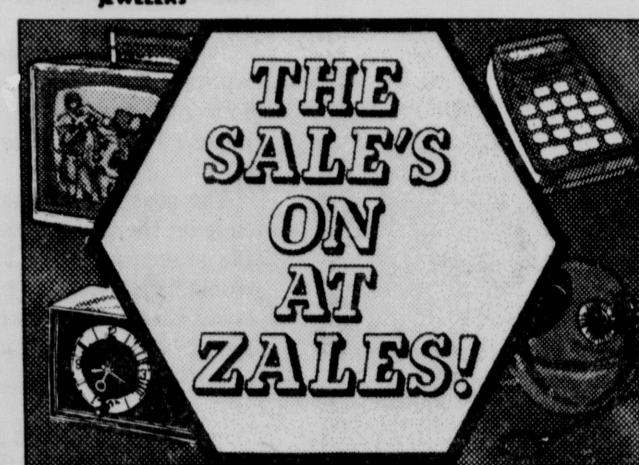

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Floods have left more than 8,000 persons homeless in central Mozambique, but no deaths have been reported yet, the news agency Lusitania said Thursday.

Flood waters from the River Save have ruined crops and killed livestock, and the village of Machanga has been virtually submerged, the agency said.

It said the floods in the Portuguese African territory were blamed on heavy rains in Rhodesia that swelled the Lundi tributary flowing into the River Save.

Portuguese air force helicopters were reported dropping food and supplies to villages, the agency said.

Simon Says Companies Agree To Encourage 10-Gallon Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gasoline companies have agreed to encourage the voluntary 10-gallon-per-customer limit on service station sales, federal energy chief William E. Simon announced Thursday.

Simon also said new gasoline price increases would be granted on Feb. 1, raising the average price by March to some 8 to 11 cents above the levels of early December.

Meanwhile, the Internal Revenue Service reported one out of every five service stations checked was selling gasoline at illegally high prices.

Simon said the worst cases were found in the Chicago area where premium gasoline was sold as high as $1.04 a gallon and regular gasoline — that's right, regular — was priced as high as $2.00 a gallon.

One Chicago station was ordered closed by a federal court Sunday after an Internal Revenue agent testified he was charged $2.10 per gallon.

Simon said the IRS also spotted various service station tricks to get around legal price ceilings, including a 25-cent "service charge" for selling gasoline; sales of gasoline linked with a $10 ticket for other services; and offers of "free" gasoline tied to purchases of other items at high prices.

He said citizens should report such price-gouging to their local Internal Revenue Service offices, which "will handle that immediately."

Simon's announcement concerning the 10-gallon voluntary sales limit carried one step farther his public appeal last month for motorists to purchase no more than 10 gallons of gasoline weekly.

At that time, Simon had also asked service station operators to sell no more than 10 gallons to each customer.

His latest announcement made no change in that policy, but enlisted the aid of major oil companies and independent distributors and retailers to encourage compliance with the guideline.

He said they have agreed to help.

Simon also revised upward his estimate of the gasoline price increases to be expected.

Simon had estimated last week that the current round of foreign oil price increases would bring an increase of about seven cents per gallon to gasoline in the United States.

Now, he says, a 1.5-cent ceiling-price increase approved Jan. 1 must be added to that, and further increases will arrive with adoption of a formula on Feb. 1 to compensate gasoline station owners and operators for part of the income they will lose as the amounts of gasoline they have to sell are cut back under federal regulations.

The result, he said, will be price increases of 8 to 11 cents per gallon, measured against the prices prevailing in early December.

Simon reported that gasoline consumption has continued to decline in December, but the savings were still far short of the 20 per cent cutback considered necessary.

For the four-week period ending Dec. 21, Simon reported, gasoline consumption averaged 7.8 per cent lower than normal forecasts, an improvement from the 5.6 per cent savings-level reported a week earlier.

U.S. Auto Production To Decline

Detroit (UPI) — U.S. automakers, who have announced permanent layoffs for nearly 54,000 workers because of slumping big car sales, will build fewer cars this month than in any January since the 1970 recession.

Production this month should just reach 674,000 cars, a 27% drop from last January and the lowest since 601,000 cars were built in January, 1970.

All seven Chrysler Corp. assembly plants were closed this week and three will remain shut through next week. General Motors plans a series of short shutdowns and the elimination of second shifts at big car plants while Ford and American Motors also are trimming big cars from production schedules.

December sales figures, available from the four companies Friday, will show the third straight month in which sales have dropped from year-ago figures. Despite the late-year slump, sales of U.S.-built cars in 1973 will reach nearly 10 million for a new record.

"The December sales figures will be real soft, especially on the big models," said one industry analyst, pointing to fuel-conscious buyers.

The auto industry's production cutbacks were sending ripples into all sectors of the American economy, even in the relatively rural sections of northern Michigan.

Gulf and Western Forming Co. of East Jordan, Mich., announced it was laying off 23 of its 292 employees at the end of the week because of customer cutbacks. The small community has 2,000 residents.

The company, which makes components for the "Big Four," already had laid off 70 of its 200 workers at its Mancelona plant.

"If the automakers slow down, we slow down," a company spokesman said.

More than 140 workers at Standard Products of Gaylord, a town of 3,000, were laid off Dec. 14. The company, which makes weather stripping for GM cars, said most of the workers would return to their jobs Jan. 19.

GM plans to build 358,000 cars this month, down about 117,000 from its original January target and 30% below last January. Ford will produce 191,000 cars, down 21.5% from a year ago; Chrysler will turn out 84,000, a 36.4% decline from a year ago, and American Motors plans to build 41,000 a 34% jump from last January.

Kuwait To Take Control of 60% Of Foreign Firm

Beirut, Lebanon (AP) — Kuwait has reached agreement with two major Western oil companies to take over 60% of their operations, a high Kuwaiti official was quoted as saying Thursday.

Sheik Saad al Abdullah, the minister of defense and the interior, was reported by the Beirut newspaper An Nahar to have said in an interview that the agreement with Gulf Oil Corp. and British Petroleum included the option of complete nationalization in five years. The two companies jointly own the Kuwait Oil Co. — KOC.

The Kuwaiti firm produces more than 90% of Kuwait's three million barrels of crude oil a day.

Car Pool Coaxing Commences

Washington (UPI) — The government Thursday began a national campaign to coax Americans into car pools in hopes of saving billions of gallons of gasoline.

"As a matter of national energy conservation policy, Americans must be persuaded to give up single passenger commuter travel wherever possible," Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar said.

If Americans do make a mass switch to car pools, the gas savings would be impressive.

The Federal Highway Administration said there are areas where "preferential treatment for car pools include reduced toll charges on bridges, tunnels and toll roads, express lanes on highways and federal aid funds can be used for construction of fringe parking lots for car pools."

The average occupancy of cars used for commuting is now 1.6 persons. "If this occupancy rate could be raised to 3.2 persons through car-pooling we could save 20 billion gallons of gasoline annually," Brinegar said.

Even an increase from 1.6 to 2 persons per car would save 5 billion gallons each year.

The government is also giving would be car-poolers advice on potential insurance problems to cover the added passengers.

"If you are joining, or forming a car pool, check your policy to be sure you and your potential passengers will be adequately covered," the highway agency said.

Speed Limit Law Clarified

WASHINGTON (AP) — States with speed limits lower than 55 miles per hour will be able to keep the lower limits if the state speed limits were set before Nov. 1, 1973, Secretary of Transportation Claude Brinegar says.

Brinegar had said Wednesday that all states with speed limits lower than 55 miles per hour on four-lane divided highways had to raise their limits to 55 or face the loss of federal highway funds.

He clarified that statement Wednesday night, saying the new federal law affected only states which had lowered their limits below 55 miles per hour after Nov. 1.

Canadian Oil Announcement Made

OTTAWA (AP) — The National Energy Board announced Thursday that Canadian oil should sell in the United States at $6.40 a barrel more than in Canada during the month of February. The posted wellhead price of crude oil in Canada is $4 a barrel.

Since October, such differentials set by the board have been established by the government as its export tax on crude oil.

But Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said the export charge for February will be determined after the federal provincial first ministers' meeting Jan. 22-23. He said last week the tax could be $6.50 next month.

The board's announcement was made in the House of Commons resources committee by board member John Stabback.

He said the price is suggested to bring prices of Canadian oil in the Chicago market in line with the latest prices of crude exported to the United States from other countries.

The differential between domestic and export prices was set by the board at $2.20 for January — and the government used the same figure as its export charge.

It was 40 cents in October and November, and $1.90 in December.

The tax is designed to reap revenues for Canada as a result of rising world oil prices, while keeping the domestic price of Canadian crude lower. It also prevents windfall profits by oil companies.

But the federal and provincial governments never have agreed on how the tax revenues should be shared. That will be a key issue at the federal provincial conference later this month.

Florida Mayor's Sixth Marriage Ends In Divorce

MIAMI (AP) — After lasting 76 days, Dade County Metro Mayor Jack Orr's sixth marriage has ended in divorce.

Orr, 54, wed Elizabeth Fussell, 38, early last autumn. Maurice Bell, Orr's attorney, said Wednesday that the mayor was granted the divorce in Haiti shortly before the first of the year.

Orr refused comment on the divorce and his former wife could not be reached for comment.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

"If it wasn't for Watergate, this would have been a pretty good year," presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler remarked recently in regard to 1973. Of course, Watergate is a rather large exception but it is that way with most of us.

Take out one or two things in the year and most of us could say that it was a pretty good period. Or, add just one or two items and it would be the same way. The trouble is that this is seldom the way things go. Very rarely are our lives either all sunshine or all darkness and most of the time they are simply partly cloudy.

And while we simply enjoy the sunshine aspects of life, it is the darker elements that seem to concern us. Our gains tend to take for granted while we resent our losses or are at least disappointed with them, apparently a natural human tendency.

It has not been a winning year for Lancaster County commissioners who have just lost another struggle with elected county department heads. Apparently, the board cannot force department heads to file purchase orders in advance when buying supplies or equipment.

This again pinpoints the unique nature of the county board, a board of final responsibility but one without any real authority. While the board must approve claims for purchases, it can be nothing but a rubber stamp in this regard.

Once money is appropriated by the board for county operations, it can do nothing about the way in which that money is spent, so long as department heads operate within the overall guidelines or legal limits of their office. Those guidelines or limits call for little more than reasonable responsibility.

If a department head wants to buy a truck and the board thinks the purchase is unwarranted, that is too bad. There is nothing the board can do about this even though it does approve the ultimate claim for payment by the vendor.

One really wonders why the state ever set up the kind of county government it did as the system is a most unproductive one. Lancaster County government is not all that bad, and never has been, but we believe it could be better and its form is ridiculous in principle or theory.

To have an elected board of final authority but give it no real power to do anything just doesn't make any sense. It leaves the board as nothing but a kind of figurehead and that is the kind of thing we could do without.

About all the board can do is seek a minimum level of efficiency and integrity through its budget-setting process but that is, as has been proven, a weak and ineffective tool.

The board does not even have what is called line item authority over the budget. It may decide a total budget figure on the basis of specific needs but it can appropriate for departments only on a lump-sum basis.

Once the department head has his budget, the money can be spent as the department head sees fit, without regard to the specific needs taken to the board or approved by the board. Thus, the board has practically no clout at all when it comes to the administration of the affairs of the county.

We would not expect unanimous agreement to it, but it would be a constructive thing to have state law changed. The county board should have at least more control over the major expenditures of departments than it does now.

This would tend to make department heads more in the image of administrators, which they ought to be, and the board more in the image of a legislative body, which it ought to be.

Fund Lack Threatens Indian Health Needs

WASHINGTON — Health experts fear that epidemics may break out on the nation's Indian reservations because of a critical lack of doctors and facilities. Indians already have the highest disease rate and lowest life expectancy of any group in the nation.

In an urgent memo to Chairman James Abourezk, D-S.D., the staff of the Senate Indian subcommittee reports evidence of "tuberculosis outbreaks" and "other serious disease epidemics particularly in the Aberdeen, S.D. area."

"We believe that the urgency of the present situation cannot be overemphasized," they stress.

The memo declares that "the backlog of people needing corrective surgery is now past 20,000. Of that number, 13,000 children are in need of surgery."

Yet President Nixon has impounded Indian Health Service money four of the last five years. This has caused a critical shortage of funds, which has brought on the Indian health crisis.

Without adequate funds, a "serious and growing shortage of physicians" has developed in facilities serving the Indians.

The facilities used by the Indian Health Service have also fallen into deplorable shape. "In the Aberdeen area alone," reports the memo, "60% of the buildings being used by the IHS have been declared unfit for use by state inspectors."

"For example, Rosebud Hospital was constructed in 1914 and has been condemned even by IHS, but for lack of funds they will have to make do."

Nor can the Indians rely on their own people for health care. There are only 52 Indian doctors in the entire United States. The IHS has launched a new recruitment drive for doctors, but the program is unlikely to help Indians in critical need of health care now.

Armed Coast Guard cutters have been waging a secret war in the Caribbean against dope smugglers, illegal immigrants and anti-Castro commandos trying to land in Cuba.

Testifying behind locked doors on Capitol Hill, Vice Adm. Thomas Sargent, the acting Coast Guard commandant, told how his men were cracking down on "those who would hijack Cuban vessels or use the United States as a staging area for attacks on Cuban vessels or territory."

He added confidentially: "I would not like to publicize too widely this particular patrol." The Coast Guard is helping to protect dictator Fidel Castro from his enemies, Sargent explained, in order to get Castro's cooperation in dealing with hijackers.

The Coast Guard's trim cutters, bolstered by planes and helicopters, also have seized thousands of pounds of dope and have blocked hundreds of restless Haitians from sneaking into the United States, reported Sargent. The cutters have even intervened in gunfights between American and Bahaman lobster fishermen.

The secret session was told that American and Bahaman lobstermen are feuding over the dwindling supplies of spiny lobsters.

"The fishermen of the Bahaman government," it was testified, "attempt to force their rights . . . by shotguns and small arms, so they have small skirmishes from time to time in these waters."

The 'Must' Win

In the latter part of April the Nebraska coaching staff and football team will reassemble at Memorial Stadium to lay plans for the 1974 gridiron campaign.

These next four months won't be nearly so dreary as they might have been for die-hard Cornhusker fans who are already anticipating next season. They can winter well, comforted by NU's "must" win at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

It was a victory of pride, personal redemption for a team which learned a lesson in desire and hardnosed football at Norman the day after last Thanksgiving. The win over Texas was a fitting climax to Tom Osborne's first season as Nebraska head coach. And it must have been an immensely satisfying experience for Steve Runty, who took the team out in the same grand manner he brought them in last September in the crushing defeat of UCLA. The Cotton Bowl victory over another traditional football power is also of tremendous advantage to the recruiting program. It is another notch on the gun for Nebraska, whose overall record and bowl log have to be the envy of the college football world.

One of the most pleasant aspects of Nebraska football doesn't have much to do with records or rankings. It has to do with the conduct of the team away from home, off the field as well as on.

Again at Dallas as elsewhere, the hosts were moved to comment on the good sportsmanship and manners of their guests.

That attitude on the part of others also reflects on what we like to think of as a high caliber football program at the University of Nebraska. The fans in this state place so much emphasis on football. They are fortunate to be so ably represented in all respects.

Lieutenant Governor's Role

State Sen. William Hasebrook of West Point is sponsoring a constitutional amendment which would remove the lieutenant governor as the presiding officer of the Legislature starting in 1975.

The bill to put the question on the state ballot this spring was moved ahead on a 39-0 vote in the Legislature Wednesday, and hopefully the proposition will make as much sense to voters as it apparently does to senators.

Hasebrook says that it is important that once the lieutenant governor is elected as part of a partisan team that he not be the Unicameral's presiding officer. Starting in 1975, he noted, the lieutenant governor will be "squarely in the executive branch" and Hasebrook argues that the lieutenant governor thus should not be in the Legislature where he might be in a position to exert political influence.

The issue has been raised before. Although Nebraskans responded favorably to the amendment providing for team election and the assumption of administrative duties by the lieutenant governor, they also defeated in 1970 an amendment similar to Hasebrook's proposal which also would have removed the lieutenant governor from the Legislature.

Are the voters now apt to change their minds even before the first elected team takes office?

A better argument — although the question ultimately will hang on the partisan angle — might be that since the new tandem election provision allows the governor to assign the lieutenant governor administrative duties, the latter should be freed of his rather routine legislative role in order to fulfill them.

We think Hasebrook's proposal should be put on the ballot and approved by voters. But we imagine that it may take a year or two or more of experiencing the new system of team election before Nebraskans are willing to change their minds about the role the lieutenant governor should assume in state government.

JAMES RESTON

Nixon's Last 1,000 Days

NEW YORK — Among many who long at the beginning of the new year for a new government and a new spirit in America, there is still a reluctance to call for the resignation or impeachment of the President, something that holds them back, probably some fear that somehow this would weaken the presidency and harm the nation.

There is something to this notion, but not much. The President is not the government. The security and continuity of the Republic do not rest on any one man, not even on a Lincoln, let alone a Nixon. The system is strong and resilient, and could survive not only Nixon's departure but might even endure his presence for three more years.

But if he were to go quietly, the administration would remain in place with the Congress and the courts, the market would probably jump up after a startled hiccup, and a grateful nation would rally around the new president as it did after the deaths of Roosevelt and Kennedy.

The popular argument for tolerating three more years of Nixon is that his achievements in the field of foreign affairs, particularly with the Soviets and the Chinese, might be lost if he resigned, and that Vice President Ford is not as experienced in the foreign arena as Nixon, which is obviously true.

But if the American people sometimes confuse the power of America with the personality or character of the president, foreign governments do not. The danger now is not that powerful foreign governments might try to take advantage of a new president, but that they might try to take advantage of a distrusted president presiding over a divided America.

Also, in the next three years, the critical foreign questions are not likely to depend on Nixon's personal relations with Brezhnev or Chou En-Lai, but on United States relations with Western Europe, Japan, and the Middle East, where Nixon's achievements in the last five years have not been spectacular.

These are the coming areas. In strategic terms, the Middle East is the key. It is the fundamental political question in the world, for the oil blockade, protected by Soviet power, threatens the industrial security of Europe, Japan, and in a more limited sense, of the United States.

But the American answer to these questions depends more on a united nation than on Nixon. Already, the informing mind in all these diplomatic tangles is not the President's but Kissinger's, and while all the courtesies of presidential power are respected, the foreign embassies in Washington and their governments are more concerned about the internal unity of America than about anything else.

Another popular argument against the resignation of the President is that it might set a bad precedent and hurt the institution of the presidency. But why?

Nothing is likely to hurt the presidency more than tolerating a man who has been unfaithful to the spirit of the Constitution, who has put a gang of twisters and moral cripples in high office, and lost the trust of the people.

This trust is the first article in the political contract and essential to the moral authority of the presidency. The question is not what Nixon's mandate was in the last election, but what it is now. Once a president has lost the confidence of the electorate, resignation is not a bad but a good precedent, and if it were established by any party that a president could be called on by its leaders to resign, future presidents might be more careful about fiddling with the freedom of the people.

After all, resignation or dismissal is what happens in all other American institutions or parliamentary democracies when the chief executive fails. They don't ask whether he meant to fail, or hire burglars, or turn over his authority to dunderheads or crooks, but

TOM WICKER

Attica Reopened

NEW YORK — Maybe New York State and some of its highest officials will have to accept the responsibility, after all, for the use of excessive force and violence in the bloody recapture of the Attica correctional facility from rebellious inmates on Sept. 13, 1971.

At least that possibility has been raised by the State Court of Appeals. It ruled four-to-three the other day that the widow of a prison employee, killed during the recapture by state police gunfire, could sue the state for damages.

If the widow, Mrs. Lynda Jones of Dayton, Ohio, manages to collect, her suit and scores of others that may now be filed could therefore have serious repercussions on the presidential candidacy of Nelson A. Rockefeller. Rockefeller was governor at the time, approved the armed attack, and presumably had the ultimate responsibility for official state action taken at Attica.

A state grand jury has been sitting on the Attica matter in Wyoming County, New York, for more than two years. So far, it has issued indictments for 60 inmates or former inmates of Attica, citing a total of more than 1,300 counts of criminal activity — including murder and kidnapping — during the four-day uprising. So far, however, no state official, state trooper, sheriff's deputy or corrections officer has been indicted for anything that took place during the insurrection or the recapture of the prison.

Yet, on Sept. 13, 29 inmates and 10 of their hostages died, all by gunfire from the attacking force. More than 80 persons were wounded during the assault, carried out by state police and sheriff's deputies — as well as a few corrections officers who violated specific orders and took part in the gunfire.

That was established by the McKay Commission, which Rockefeller appointed to investigate the Attica affair. The commission also found, among other things, that excessive gunfire, and inappropriate weapons — for example, shotguns loaded with buckshot — had been used in the assault; that the state had provided inadequate medical facilities before, during and for hours after the attack; and that officials of the corrections department and the state police had failed to protect the recaptured inmates from physical brutality and reprisals on Sept. 13 and thereafter.

One of the hostages held by the inmates was Herbert W. Jones Jr., a 26-year-old clerk at Attica; he was shot and killed by the assaulting officers. Mrs. Jones sued the state for $2 million damages; the suit was dismissed in appellate court; but the Court of Appeals, in an opinion by Judge Adrian P. Burke, ruled that "a long line of cases has held the state or municipalities liable for the action of their police officers in line of duty."

Thus, if Mrs. Jones and her lawyers can prove, as she claims in her suit, that the attacking force "without just cause or provocation," and with excessive force and violence, killed her husband, she can collect damages from the state. Judge Burke, pointedly called attention in his ruling to the McKay Commission's findings: even one of the dissenters pointed out that crucial decisions made at Attica came from "the highest levels of the executive branch of the government," and Mrs. Jones' attorney said immediately that he planned to call Rockefeller as a witness in the trial.

All the other survivors of the Attica dead, as well as those wounded in the assault, also may file suit now; surely a good number of them will do so, and many may also seek to involve Rockefeller personally. Thus, the Attica incident, which had seemed relegated to the past as far as Rockefeller's actions and responsibilities were concerned, now may furnish a sort of running accompaniment to the effort he is expected to make for the presidency in 1976.

Precisely what political effect that might have is not clear. Some analysts have thought Rockefeller's stand at Attica had helped him shake his "liberal image" and — with the tough new drug law he sponsored in New York last year — had made him a leading "law-and-order" candidate. But repeated findings that his state police and other officials had used excessive force and neglected necessary precautions — yet had not been prosecuted — might put a different political face on the matter.

More important, however, is that the question of the state's responsibility has been reopened. The inmates who may have violated the law are being held to account; and if the state will not prosecute those of its own who also may have violated the law, perhaps it may at least have to bear the monetary consequences of their act.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by the writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Return Of Old Days?

Lincoln, Neb. This energy business has us all up-tight. What's next? Maybe we are on our way back to the good ol' days.

Nebraska began when wagon trains were heading West. My grandparents with 12 children paused on a hilltop, saw the wide sweep of green land and miles of hardy timberland. The rich black earth filtered through the fingers of men wise to good farm land. Some dug back into the hills to live in caves. Others with strong backs and arms cut the trees to build log cabins, stuffing cracks with a water and clay mixture to keep out the snow, dust and wind that swirled the faint light from the twist of rag in a pan of tallow.

The dirt floor was swept by corn stalks fastened together. The thatched roof often was blown off in part, giving the elements of the moment full play on the hapless families below.

Never in their wildest dreams would they have dreamed of progress as we today have come to accept as a way of life. Factories that give us everything, farm machinery, a push-button woman's world, washers, dryers, lights. Grandma had her tallow-lit room and Mamma, a coal-oil lamp whose chimney I often had to clean. I graduated to gas lights and stove, then electric light from one bulb and today there are fantastic lighting arrangements in homes and public buildings.

Our bathrooms — tub, wash bowl and toilet all in one room — are a far cry from the outdoor pump, tin wash pan and tub before the open oven door of the big iron range, and the cold outside privy.

Everyone either had a cow and chickens or bought their needs from a neighbor. Everyone had some kind of garden.

How many of our luxuries will we lose from this new racket that threatens our way of life?

Friends Abroad

New York, N.Y. In our 21st year of channeling requests for pen friends from Americans to people of other countries, we face a serious problem. There are literally thousands of unmatched requests from abroad for American friends in our files. Unfortunately, requests from Americans in recent months are far below normal.

"Letters Abroad" is the only American pen friend organization serving adults (16 years of age and over). Some of the friendships established through a careful matching process are almost as old as the organization. Many of the alliances have resulted in personal visits between correspondents. Often these visits include the entire family.

All foreign applicants for American pen friends are able to correspond in English. On occasion and by agreement, each friend writes in the other's language, thus improving facility and usage of their respective non-native tongue. Requests are also matched, wherever possible, by age group, interests and hobbies.

For full details, anyone may write to "Letters Abroad," 209 East 56th St., New York City, N.Y. 10022, enclosing a return self-addressed stamped envelope.

President

Figuratively Speaking

Lincoln, Neb. "When I am the candidate," says our beloved President, "I run the campaign." Those campaigns, from the first one in 1946 against Rep. Jerry Voorhis, have revealed a shabby array of dirty tricks — trumped-up charges, malicious and extravagant distortion of fact and motive, phony organizations, outright lies, extortion.

An example. In the congressional campaign of 1954, our beloved vice president said that when Eisenhower came to Washington in 1953, he found "in the files a blueprint for socializing America."

When questioned by reporters, Nixon's press agent said that the boss was using only "figurative" language. In other words, there was no blueprint, there was no well-oiled scheme.

At this point in time, we may safely assume that the perfect clarity of the explanations of former explanations that had obviously failed to explain are simply further examples of figurative language. There is not a word of truth in them anywhere.

GEORGE V. OBERLEUDER

Skeletons

Lincoln, Neb. The idea of impeaching our President is a lot of nonsense. Who worked to bring the Vietnam war to an end? Has Mr. Public forgotten so soon that he did this?

He's a human being. Why drag skeletons out of the closet when we are only hurting others? So far, nothing has come of this. Let's conserve energy by using our minds to clear up a mess much more interesting to everyone.

He's trying to uphold the presidency.

Good People

Pleasant Dale, Neb. I wish to thank the three hunters in their four-wheel-drive white Chevy van who pulled me out of a snowdrift on Sunday, Dec. 30. Their help and concern were sincerely appreciated in the cold and snowy weather. They would not accept any reimbursement for helping me, but asked only that I write to a newspaper and state that hunters are good people.

I wish these three gentlemen continued success in their hunting.

POSTCARD

Quebec — In the snowy morning in Quebec City, in Lower Town at the Church of Notre Dame des Victories, the ancient narrow streets were filled with women carrying great baskets full of fresh baked bread and loaves.

The third of January is Sainte Genevieve's Day, and the bread — "the little loaves of Sainte-Genevieve" — is in memory of her blessed intervention to save the French settlers from starvation during a terrible winter.

In the grand hotel Chateau Frontenac, the head waiter said: "The custom dates much before that. The Sainte was a young Parisian who saved Paris from Attila and the Huns.

"When country wheat was blockaded, she worked out a rationing system of bread. The Parisians began the custom of baking the 'little loaves' — Les Petite Pain de Sainte-Genevieve.

"In the winter when the first settlers here were starving, they asked the help of Sainte-Genevieve again. And so they were saved."

Chateau Frontenac is built on the bluff above the silver St. Lawrence where the palace of the French governors once stood.

It has Norman steeped roofs. Copper covered. Green with age. There are high ceilings. Dark paneled walls. The driveway opens into the old French Place d'Armes.

In the chandeliered dining room we ate quail stuffed with foie gras and decorated with white grapes. The maitre d'hotel himself poured brandy over it and lit the fuse.

When it went off in flames we all lifted our glasses and cried:

"Free Quebec!" It was an emotional evening.

Behind the fortified walls the old houses of old Quebec lean into narrow streets lit faintly by yellow street lamps.

Above the river, the Plains of Abraham are a well kept, snowy monument park.

It was here the English General James Wolfe defeated French General Louis Joseph Montcalm. The battle lasted 10 minutes. One of those professional things those days, both sides lined up shoulder to shoulder. You couldn't miss.

"Fire first, gentlemen of France!" (Polite cats in those good old days.)

"No, you fire first, Messieurs les Anglais!"

Bang! Rough duty for a GI in those black gunpowdered days.

"What do they do with the bread?" I said. The head waiter said: "They are blessed by the parish priest. Then they are given away to the people who come to pray for good fortune in the new year."

The church was first built in 1688 in memory of Governor Frontenac's victory beating off an early British attack. British and French fought bloody battles in this part of the New World. The altar was shaped like a fortress: Turrets and battlements. The head waiter said: "The giving of the little loaves is one of our most cherished customs. We are Canadians, true. But we are French in our hearts."

Over the hotel and over the town square they fly the blue and white fleur-de-lys flag of Quebec.

Both generals — Montcalm and Wolfe — were killed. (None of that "too far up to wear a tie, too far back to get shot at" in those wars.) Generals stood magnificently uniformed in plain sight. Prime targets.

Montcalm was buried in Quebec. They shipped Wolfe back to England, preserved in a cask of New England rum. England became the ruler of Canada.

The Quebec people went right on talking French.

Eight of every 10 talk French to this very blessed day.

2-Family Fued In Italian Town Leaves 5 Dead

GUARDAVALLE, Italy (AP) — A family feud erupted into a bloody gun battle in this southern Italian town, leaving five persons dead and nine wounded.

Five of the wounded were reported in critical condition. Among the dead was a 13-year-old boy, authorities said.

Police said the battle developed in three stages, starting in the main square of Guardavalle, a town of 6,000 in the poor and underdeveloped Calabrian region. It then shifted to the countryside.

They said members of the Tedesco and Gullace families ambushed members of the Randazzo family who were emerging from a party.

The groups clashed later on the town's outskirts, then began raiding houses of their enemies in the countryside.

Police said the feud began with a dispute five years ago over ownership of some land near the town.

Fiscal Staff Budget Seeks 12% Hike

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The legislative fiscal analyst's staff Thursday presented state senators with state government operational budget recommendations which would increase general fund spending by 12% in fiscal 1974-75.

The detailed proposals, prepared for all senators upon the request of the Legislative Council's executive board, do not include recommendations for institutions of higher education.

Those recommendations, which will be forthcoming later this month, would boost general fund expenditures by another $10 million to $12 million, it was understood.

That would push the total general fund spending hike closer to 13%.

The state tax-supported increase for all other state agencies would total about $20.3 million.

Legislative Fiscal Analyst Eldin Ehrlich told newsmen the recommended budget does not assume any particular level of state sales or income tax rates.

Gov. J. James Exon is drafting his budget recommendations on the basis of revenue which might be realized from a 13% personal income tax rate. That was the rate in effect until Jan. 1, when it fell to 11% at the direction of a majority of the members of the State Board of Equalization.

While the income tax rate is in flux, the sales tax rate remains steady at 2 1/2%.

Included in the massive budget recommendations prepared by the legislative fiscal staff is a reduction in the current level of state financial aid to public schools from $55 million to $35 million a year.

The $20 million addition was injected into the program by the 1973 Legislature in the form of federal revenue sharing funds.

Ehrlich told newsmen the fiscal staff decided it should leave the basic policy decision on state aid to senators themselves, making no recommendation as to whether the general fund should be tapped for replacement funds for some or all of the federal revenue-sharing moneys.

By categories, here is what the staff recommendations would do to the level of general fund spending:

	1973-74	1974-75
Gen. governm.	$32,560,979	$43,219,647
Human resources	64,028,475	66,763,121
Trans.	1,821,069	2,104,072
Pub. safety	11,447,427	12,580,839
Nat. Resources	7,274,175	6,321,087
Education	46,269,298	52,762,947
TOTALS	163,401,423	182,751,713

The 1973-74 appropriation for higher education — the University of Nebraska, state colleges, vocational technical community colleges and the board offices for the state and community colleges — was $68,306,902. The staff recommendation for 1974-75 is expected to hover between $78 million and $80 million.

Total general fund requests reached $336 million, including $89.6 million from the institutions of higher education.

In a brief narrative for senators, Ehrlich noted that the budget provides a 6.5% hike for personal services, largely salaries.

As for revenue, the document assumes a general policy that "sources of revenue other than the general fund would be maximized within reasonable limits of collections and levels of service provided," the narrative explains.

The recommended budget is keyed to "a plan to provide important services through established objectives, having goals that are identifiable and specific enough to allow the measurement of what has been accomplished," senators were told.

There has been "a general lack of planning" in the past, it was stated, leading toward "a requirement that agencies determine programmatic objectives and goals in order to critically review programs with standards other than expenditures."

The recommendations were prepared by Ehrlich and 15 analysts.

Staff proposals will be explained in detail to members of the Appropriations Committee, which will present its own budget recommendations to the Legislature later in the session.

Exon's recommendations may be forthcoming toward the end of January.

Appropriations Committee Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings told the Legislature the fiscal staff document is as much a tribute to the late former Sen. George Gerdes as it is to any living senator.

Gerdes long sought to provide the Legislature with more fiscal information, Marvel noted. Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, who urged preparation of the recommendation as chairman of the executive board, said it will for the first time give senators the background to make "an independent judgment" on the budget package.

Marvel's committee began its budget hearings Thursday afternoon. Dividing into subcommittees, the budget unit expects to hear the requests of 60 spending agencies within the next two weeks, Marvel said.

Hearings for major spending agencies will follow, and "with luck and hard work," the committee should conclude its hearings in early February, he said.

Then the committee will reach its own recommendations, Marvel said. At this stage, he said, members are neither endorsing nor accepting the fiscal staff's proposals.

Last Rider Is 106

Orlando "Dad" Walking of Modesto, Calif. the only survivor of the great ride into Oklahoma's Cherokee Strip land rush in 1893, celebrated his 106th birthday Wednesday. "My working days are about over," Walking says, but he continues to support himself by making leather goods and artifacts.

Added Controls Ordered At Plant

The State Department of Environmental Control (DEC) Thursday told the Nebraska Public Power District to start installing new air pollution control devices at its Kramer Power Station in Bellevue.

In announcing the decision, J. L. Higgins, DEC director, said NPPD had been granted until June 1, 1975 to install an estimated $12 million in particulate emission controls.

However, under the new compliance schedule devised for the Kramer Station by the DEC, the equipment will not be operational until June 1, 1976. In its request for a variance, NPPD had asked the state to extend the deadline for compliance until June 1, 1976.

Higgins said federal regulations prohibit him from granting variances beyond June 1, 1975. Consequently, NPPD will have to ask the federal Environmental Protection Agency for the additional one-year variance.

NPPD is supposed to award the contract for the construction of the particulate collectors on Feb. 28, 1974, according to the DEC's compliance schedule.

Higgins said the Kramer Station's current air pollution equipment removes only 80% of the plants' particulates; he said the new equipment would allow the plant to meet state air pollution standards.

NPPD had originally proposed the Kramer Station be allowed to operate without additional

Methodists Announce 3 Changes

Three pastoral changes in United Methodist churches have been announced by Bishop Don W. Holter, resident bishop of the denomination in Nebraska.

The Rev. James Hansen will be the new pastor of First United Methodist Church in Grand Island, effective Jan. 15. He succeeds the Rev. Doyle Hays who has been granted a disability leave because of ill health.

The Rev. Kenneth D. Rood will be the new pastor at St. Luke Church in Lincoln, effective Feb. 1. He will succeed The Rev. Mr. Hansen.

The Rev. Elvin Bratton has been assigned to the Palmer-Archer pastoral charge, effective Feb. 1, succeeding The Rev. Mr. Rood. The Rev. Mr. Bratton is currently the pastor of Rising City-Ulysses-Brainard pastoral charge.

Omaha Voters Will Decide On Bond Issues

Omaha (AP) — Voters will be asked to approve about $7.5 million in bond issues on the May ballot.

After the City Council agreed informally to the plan, it was said that the bond issues likely will be broken into three ballot issues.

These include purchase of snow removal and other equipment for the Public Works Department, and to upgrade some of the department's shops, $4 million; to pay for the first phase of a computerized traffic signal system, about $500,000, and to improve park and recreational facilities, $3 million.

Formal action to place the items on the ballot must be taken later.

Presidential Race 'Light Years' Away

Austin, Tex. (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., calling the 1976 presidential campaign "light years" away, said he has no present aspirations for the nation's highest office but will make reassessment at the end of the year.

Nebraska will stay in step with the remainder of the nation on Jan. 6 when the year around federal Daylight Saving Time law goes into effect.

That became certain Thursday when members of the Legislature voted 29-19 against a motion from Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway asking that all of the state go on mountain daylight time.

That was among the options Nebraska had under the federal law because part of the state is in the mountain time zone and part is in the central zone.

Federal Dictates

Earlier Thursday, Gov. J. James Exon advised that "because of federal dictates we in Nebraska cannot achieve what most of us want regarding proposed time changes—that is to leave our clocks as they are during the winter months and then return to Daylight Saving Time during the summer as is customary."

Exon added: "because of Washington's refusal of our latest appeal, all Nebraskans are being forced by congressional and presidential action to either go along with their year-round Daylight Saving Time dictates or be without Daylight Saving Time even during the summer."

The U.S. Transportation Department had advised Exon's office that Nebraska had no such option.

The governor said he was awaiting legislative indications "as to how the senators feel we should proceed." The senatorial sentiment came shortly after Exon gave his statement to the news media.

Doubt Expressed

In arguing for his motion, Waldron said going to Daylight Saving Time 365 days of the year will probably result in the use of more energy because people will be getting up in darkness and turning up thermostats earlier than they normally would. He

Bill Would Do Away With County Attorneys

By United Press International
A bill was introduced in the Legislature Thursday which would, in effect, do away with county attorneys.

The bill, LB669, which was introduced by the Legislature's Judiciary Committee, would establish a statewide district attorney system which would handle all criminal cases now handled by county attorneys.

Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, judiciary chairman, said, however, counties would still be able to hire attorneys to handle civil cases and to give legal advice to the boards.

"But for all intents and purposes there would no longer be also expressed doubt that Nebraska's commerce and industry would be adversely affected by adoption of mountain time.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said Daylight Saving Time "would be a very serious burden on outstate Nebraska" and that occasionally Omaha and Lincoln had to take the interests of other citizens of the state into consideration.

But in arguing against the Waldron motion, Sen. Ramey C. Whitney of Chappell cited an estimate by the Nebraska Public Power District that year around Daylight Saving Time would result in a one per cent saving in fuel.

Clumsy Situation

It would be "ridiculous" for Nebraska to be out of step with the rest of the nation, according to Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue. He added that for Omaha to be on one time schedule and Council Bluffs, Iowa, on another would result in a clumsy situation in that metropolitan area.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln said he made a quick poll of the Lincoln delegation in the Unicameral and found members opposed to Waldron's proposal, even though they were not too happy with the federal law.

"There are times when a state can go off on its own, but this is not it," was the view of Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha.

Several of the lawmakers said winter Daylight Saving Time would cause unnecessary hardships and inconveniences in Nebraska.

Here is how the senators balloted on the Waldron motion to have the state go on year round mountain daylight time.

Senators Advance Bill To Allow 3-Day Purchase Reconsideration

By The Associated Press

Persons making purchases from door-to-door salesmen would have 72 hours to cancel their orders under a bill given first-round approval in the Legislature Thursday.

The bill, LB212, was advanced on a 26-0 vote.

Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway, who introduced the bill, said it would allow a three-day cooling off period in which the purchaser could cancel a purchase if he finds that the product is something he does not want or cannot afford.

Waldron said the act is designed to discourage high pressure salesmen and is patterned after federal trade regulations which will go into effect later this year.

Senators deferred action on a bill to allow drivers to turn over their driver license instead of posting bond for minor traffic violations.

The bill, LB520, was introduced by the Judiciary Committee. Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, chairman, said the bill would allow a person to deposit his license with a promise to appear in court.

After several senators voiced opposition to the bill on the grounds that it would be hard to

Campaign Financing Measure Introduced

By United Press International
State Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island contends Nebraska's elections are the cleanest and Thursday he introduced a bill in the Legislature which he said would prove it.

The bill, LB677, would require each candidate to establish one checking account in a bank of his choice into which he would channel all contributions and in turn from which he would pay all bills. Public reports would then be compiled from the account records.

"I don't think we have any campaign financing problems in Nebraska and I feel this bill will show that elections in Nebraska are clean," Kelly said.

On the other hand, however, the lawmaker said if there are abuses, "this bill will uncover them."

The senator said he felt if his idea is adopted now, any future tendency for candidates to become involved in questionable financial activities might be averted.

'Public Control'

The basic idea, even though there is a misdemeanor penalty clause, is public control, Kelly said.

"If the public has the knowledge of what a candidate is doing financially, I feel that would control any unfavorable activities," he said.

Under the terms of the bill monthly accountings would have to be filed with the secretary of state's office from checking account records. The reports, in turn, would be public property.

During the last two months of the campaign, however, reports would have to be filed every 15 days.

Uniform Deposit Slips

The bill would also require, for reporting requirement purposes, that uniform deposit slips and check forms be established by the secretary of state's office.

The measure would also do away with credit campaigns, according to Kelly.

The measure would automatically declare null and void any unpaid campaign expenses on election day.

"Any campaign expense remaining unpaid on election

Pregnancy Said No Bar To Schooling

A resolution urging Nebraska schools not to deny education to school girls who become pregnant was introduced in the Legislature Thursday by its only female member, Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln.

Action on the resolution was deferred.

"Not only does the constitution of Nebraska provide that free instruction in the common schools shall be provided all persons between the ages of 5 and 21, but the trend of recent court decisions indicates that neither marriage nor pregnancy is adequate ground for excluding persons from their right to an education," the resolution said.

Schools were asked to take steps "to insure that pregnant girls to school age, whether married or unmarried, receive the full benefits of the educational system."

Sen. Eugene Mahoney of Omaha proposed the reorganization, suggesting that an overall staff director is no longer required.

Without an executive director, various legislative fiscal, research and bill drafting services will be independent

Hope Of Hughes' Return Dwindles

Washington — A high Justice Department official conceded Thursday that there was little hope of extraditing Howard R. Hughes from his Bahamas refuge to stand trial in a Las Vegas, Nev., stock fraud case.

Hughes, who is living at the Xanadu Princess Hotel in Freeport, on Grand Bahama Island, is scheduled to be arraigned in Las Vegas Jan. 11. But, the official said, "I don't know that we're going to be able to extradite him. It looks tough."

He added that federal prosecutors here and in Nevada had been aware of the potential difficulty in seeking Hughes' return before an indictment naming him and four others was handed down by a federal grand jury in Las Vegas Dec. 27.

The chief obstacle, another official said, was the decision by a Bahamian magistrate earlier last month not to return Robert L. Vesco, another accused stock swindler, to the United States to stand trial on a charge of wire fraud.

The magistrate, Emmanuel F. Osadebay, ruled Dec. 7, three weeks before Hughes and his associates were charged by the grand jury, that wire fraud did not constitute an extraditable offense because no similar provision existed in Bahamas law.

"It's a bad precedent," said another official concerned with extradition matters.

The official noted that four of the seven counts with which Hughes was charged also involve wire fraud, which is the use of interstate telephone or telegraph communications to aid the commission of a fraudulent act.

The three others deal with alleged stock manipulations by Hughes and others to facilitate the financier's take-over in 1969 of Air West, a supplemental California air carrier.

The Justice Department official said he was convinced that none of the stock fraud charges would be sufficient grounds for requesting Hughes' return to this country since they, like wire fraud, are not part of the criminal code of the Bahamas.

The official suggested that, since the Bahamas does have a general fraud statute, the United States might decide to argue that "fraud is fraud," regardless of how it is perpetrated — essentially the same argument that proved unsuccessful in the Vesco case.

"With another magistrate (besides Osadebay), we might want to try again," he said, but quickly added that no attempt would be made "just for the sake of appearances."

Just about the time that rumors of his impending indictment began to appear in the press, Hughes flew to Freeport from London, where he had been secluded at the Inn on the Park, a plush hotel in the Mayfair District.

His new residence, the Xanadu Princess, is owned by D. K. Ludwig, the shipping magnate who is even more reclusive than Hughes and reputed to be nearly as wealthy.

There have been recent reports that Hughes moved to acquire some land holdings in the Bahamas before moving there last month. But a spokesman for the Hughes organization in Los Angeles declined to elaborate on the financier's plans.

In the last several years, the Hughes organization has purchased several hotel-casino complexes in the Las Vegas area, and the Justice Department official suggested that part of these properties might be attached by the government if Hughes were fined for contempt of court for failing to appear for his arraignment.

Tight Meat Supplies, High Tabs Forecast

CHICAGO (AP) — Meat prices on the average will be higher in 1974 than they were in 1973, but they won't reach the peak levels of last summer, an official of a meat producers' association predicted Thursday.

Richard Lyng, president of the American Meat Institute, also said Americans will eat about four pounds more meat per person this year, and that supplies for most of the year would be ample. "There is no need for the U.S. to have shortages of food," he said, discounting predictions by some groups of serious food shortages this year.

Supplies will be tightest and prices highest during the first six months of 1974, Lyng said, because economic uncertainties discouraged farmers from putting cattle on feed during the last half of 1973.

A statement issued by the AMI at a news conference noted that it takes five to six months to fatten full-grown feeder cattle until they are ready for slaughter.

Lyng urged the government to end price controls, which he said were partly responsible for last year's short supply of meat.

Other factors which he said contributed to the shortfall included a poor 1973 feed grain crop and growing world demand for U.S. crops.

He also said demand for all food, including meat, has increased with a steady boost over the years in government spending for food stamps.

He said the government spent $270 million on food stamps in 1969, compared with an estimated $5 billion in 1974.

However, he predicted increased meat production in 1974, influenced by these factors:

— A record feed grain crop and excellent harvest weather in the fall of 1973;

— Forecasts of a mild winter this year;

— Government assurances of adequate fuel supplies for farmers;

— End of government restrictions on full farm production.

Lyng urged consumers troubled by high meat prices to "use restraint" at the meat counter instead of boycotting meat entirely. He said last year's boycott was counterproductive because it added to the climate of economic uncertainty afflicting meat producers.

heating oil and diesel fuel by five cents a gallon.

Other companies which have announced increases in the last several days included Shell, Amoco, Standard Oil of California, Standard Oil of Ohio, and Sun Oil Co.

The companies said the higher prices reflected increasing costs of imported and some domestic oil.

The wholesale prices on which the increases were based vary widely throughout the country because of distribution costs and other factors, spokesmen for both companies said.

Midnight Returns — With Help From His Friends

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

What a kid won't do for his dog.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Chalk ran a race against time Wednesday.

And they won.

But not without a little help from a friend. From a fellow dog lover.

The children's pet, Midnight, a year-old Labrador retriever, was picked up a week ago by the Humane Society. It was spotted running free.

When they checked with the Humane Society early Wednesday morning, the children were told if they didn't come up with $15.25 to bail Midnight out of the pound by that evening, the dog would be destroyed.

Finding themselves without other resources, the enterprising youths came up with an ingenious scheme.

Three of the Chalk children — eight-year-old Randy Scott, Mona, 11; and Laura, 12 — as well as a young friend, 11-year-old Louise Daugherty, set out ringing doorbells. They sought donations for Midnight's freedom fund.

The dog's actual owner, Diane Chalk, 16, stayed home to collect the money brought in by the youngsters.

However, the reaction to such a humane gesture as saving their pet wasn't as great as had been anticipated.

The children became discouraged as Midnight's seemingly irreversible fate drew near.

They had collected a mere $9.99.

Then the telephone rang. It was a neighbor who said he would be glad to make up the difference.

Midnight's savior turned out to be Norm Tucker who "Couldn't see them without their dog. ... Couldn't see the dog killed because they couldn't get the money."

Not only did he give the children the money for Midnight's bail, but he offered to make the trip to the animal shelter to redeem the dog.

A fidgety Laura and Mona accompanied Tucker to the pound to get their dog.

The girls cried. Midnight was uninhibited in displaying her delight.

When youths and dog arrived back at home, a welcoming committee was there to greet them. Family and neighborhood children, some barefooted, and the dog all romped in the snow.

The children, all of them, received a stern lecture, delivered by Tucker, about not letting Midnight get away from them again.

It could happen again — Midnight being taken to the pound — he reminded them. Next time they may not win their race against time.

But this time they did.

LAURA CHALK . . . welcomes Midnight home.

And Mrs. Buckley Forgot Her Riding Clothes

By CHARLOTTE CURTIS

New York — The myth, long perpetuated by the fashion magazines, is that the rich and famous move effortlessly among their various houses, forever serene and perfectly equipped, forgetting nothing, their only problem the hauling of small jewel cases with perhaps a favorite sable slung over an arm. Well that, as they say, is a lot of balderdash.

"By the time we leave our house, neither of us is speaking," Schuyler Chapin said. "The last time, we literally didn't speak until we were across the Connecticut border."

The usually equable Chapin, director of the Metropolitan Opera, says he and his even-tempered wife get this way because in the get-away rush something essential is left behind. Mrs. Chapin forgets her glasses. Her husband forgets the very books he has carefully saved for the peace of their Massachusetts house.

Even the perfect Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, she of the bottomless bank account, the impeccable taste and the six sets of everything for the six exquisitely run households, has never gone anywhere without forgetting something.

Regular weekenders who have nothing more than one country house to contend with are even worse.

Pauline Trigere rarely has either stockings or the necessary blue eye-shadow upon arrival in Connecticut. Laurence C. Leeds, Jr. forgets his golf clubs. Mrs. Serge Obolensky has had to wear the wrong dress because she's left the right jewelry in the wrong town.

Alexander Liberman goes off without food bought especially for the weekend. Jerry Silverman still isn't sure whether his favorite kitchen knife is at the pool house, the main country house or the New York apartment. Lee Radziwill has been known to go off without Harry, her Pekinese.

"My God," Mrs. William F. Buckley exclaimed after a particularly trying weekend, "I've never made the trip to or from Connecticut without its resubbling the worst excesses of the French Revolution."

Mrs. Buckley is a supremely organized woman. The only possessions she remembers forgetting are her riding and tennis clothes. They showed up in New York although she never rides or plays tennis in town. She figures she must have worn them driving into the city.

"I don't know how I could possibly forget anything," she said. "I think about everything I'm going to take all day Friday and what I'm going to bring back all day Sunday."

The jewel case and the sable are no longer important to regular weekenders. Life in the country these days is either what Barbara Howar calls "studiedly informal — you know, $100 pants, $70 shirts and a lot of glup" or "really informal," which means old clothes and bluejeans.

Regardless of how informal they are, such weekends must include at least a momentary encounter with nature. Princess Radziwill swims in the Atlantic in mid-November. Mr. Silverman prunes trees. Mrs. Howar chops wood and rakes leaves. But the best proof of the outdoor life is some outward sign of the new inward grace — mud on your shoes, a scratch attributable to something you've recently learned is bearberry, or both.

More typical, however, are the rich and famous whose houses are in or near villages. They're the ones who take expresso machines and baccarat salad bowls to the country and bring their garden flowers and home-grown vegetables back. They took Brie, French wine, imported salami and caviar out until the country shops stocked up to match their special tastes.

"Problems multiply geometrically by the number of children you have," said Mr. Leeds, president of Manhattan Industries, Inc. "If our teenagers deign to go at all, the moment they arrive they make an infinite number of calls back to New York to find out what's going on. Inevitably somebody leaves his school books in the wrong place."

Babies and dogs are a challenge, too. Theodore C. Sorensen likens his travels with his 7-month-old daughter Juliet to "moving Napoleon's army around every weekend."

Besides a handbag and a needlepoint bag laden down with an address book listing the world's better unlisted telephone numbers, Mrs. Whitney has her poodle, Bebe, and Bebe's carpetbag suitcase.

"Bebe's on a diet," she explained. "She has to have her special food, her toys, her prescription and her little sweater."

It is easier, of course, to be the President of the United States and have Air Force planes and helicopters at your command. Helen Smith, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon's press secretary, insists the President and his wife never, ever forget anything anywhere, but that if they did "they could always get it from the White House."

She didn't say how.

NCAA Expands

For nearly 68 years the National Collegiate Athletic Association has governed men's collegiate athletics, reports an article in the January Reader's Digest. The organization now has an annual operating budget of $1.5 million and 42 full-time employees. The NCAA's female counterpart, the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, now not quite three years old, runs on $30,000 a year with one part-time executive and one assistant.

Fossilized Layer Cake

A cornfield on the lower Illinois River is considered one of the richest archaeological sites ever found in America. The Reader's Digest in its January issue calls it a rich "fossilized layer cake," with at least 12 separate "horizons," or layers, showing man lived there at various times for an incredible 7000 years.

Let Your Fiancee Foot The Bill

DEAR ABBY: I was married for the first time at 20. It lasted just two years. (No children, fortunately.)

Now I am 25, and am engaged to be married again. My parents are in rather modest circumstances, and I cannot ask them to give me another wedding since they spent much more than they really could afford on my first wedding.

The problem is that my fiancée would like to have a wedding that he will "remember." He wants all his friends, and of course his family, which is a large one. I have explained why this wedding will have to be small and rather modest, and he understood, but he wasn't happy about it. Now he came up with the suggestion that he put on the wedding and foot the bill. He can afford it. But what will people say? They know my parents can't afford it.

BLUE BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: The important issue is not what people will say, it's what will make you and your fiancée happy. If he wants to have a memorable wedding and can afford to foot the bills, I see no reason why he shouldn't.

DEAR ABBY: I recently returned from a trip. I traveled for one day on a bus and returned by jet.

I wasn't back two days when my husband and I discovered that we both had body lice. That's right! This was embarrassing for my husband and myself as we are clean people.

My point is this: I would like to let the public know of the health dangers involved in public transportation. I realize there could be other factors involved, but they are negative in our books.

I'd like to make a complaint, but have no idea who to contact. We are concerned with the health of other people as well as our own. Can you help us?

ITCHING IN CONNECTICUT
DEAR ITCHING: Your complaints should be made to the passenger service departments of the airline and bus company on which you traveled.

DEAR ABBY: At the risk of perpetuating the "Living Will" controversy, may I add my two cents worth?

As a nurse, I have seen many elderly terminally ill patients become artificially-breathing vegetables. Some pray for death, others refuse nourishment in order to hasten their end, some cry softly, some become bitter, and some just wait with resignation.

To allow human beings to die with dignity is not "mercy killing." When death is imminent, a patient should be kept as comfortable and pain-free as possible, but these patients will die as surely and inevitably as they did in all the centuries before "modern medicine."

dear abby

Where is it written that an appointment with God should be delayed; that He should be kept waiting while man experiments with His creation?

A NURSE IN LA JOLLA, CAL.
DEAR NURSE: Well said.

DEAR ABBY: There are eight in our family and my dishwasher has been broken for over a year. My husband has the tools and know-how to fix it, but he still hasn't gotten around to it.

I finally said: "If you don't fix this dishwasher pretty soon I am going to call in a repairman and pay him."

My husband said: "Not with MY money!" Now what?

WORN OUT

DEAR WORN: As his wife, you are his partner. Give him a deadline, and if he stalls, go ahead and call in a repairman.

DEAR ABBY: Our problem concerns our son (age 30) who gave a 25-year-old girl an engagement ring last winter in anticipation of a June wedding.

His fiancée's sister (age 20) has just announced her engagement to a young man, 21, and therein lies the problem. The parents of these sisters have talked the girls into having a double wedding to save expenses.

My son doesn't want to upset his fiancée, or get on the wrong side of her parents, but he says the idea of a double wedding turns him off. Frankly, it doesn't appeal to us either. The girl he is marrying has a large family, and the other bridegroom, we are told, also has a lot of relatives. They are talking about 700 wedding guests and a bridal party of 30!

Abby, we feel that a three-family wedding of this size will be more like a three-ring circus.

Please tell us how our son should handle this without alienating his bride or her family. No names or city, please.

MOM AND POP

DEAR MOM AND POP: Your son should make it plain to his bride that he doesn't want to share his wedding day with another couple. The fact that YOU are writing about your son's problem may say something about his reluctance to speak his piece. You can't run interference for him all his life. It's his problem. Let him handle it.

DEAR ABBY: You mentioned that occasionally couples want to be married by a clergyman, but can't find one to marry them because it's a "mixed" marriage.

May I suggest that you refer them to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormon).

The LDS marriage ceremony is simple, but impressive, and would be performed by an ordained minister recognized by city and state authority. As you know, we have no paid clergy. Our church is run by volunteers.

Since I became a bishop (this last year), I have performed two marriage ceremonies for non-members. The first was between a Catholic and a Lutheran, and the second between a Catholic and a Baptist. The church organist played the music and the room where it was held was appropriately decorated. The young couples seemed to like it very much, and you couldn't beat the price. There was no charge.

Opening lead - king of spades.

Here is a fine hand from a team of four match. At the first table the bidding went as shown and West led the king of spades. Declarer ruffed in dummy with the jack and played the king of trumps. East took the ace and returned a trump.

Declarer won the nine and ruffed his last spade. Then, the contract assured if he could draw East's remaining trump, he played the A-K of clubs, planning to ruff the third round of clubs.

Unfortunately, East ruffed the second club and South later went down one when he attempted a heart finesse.

The play started identically at the second table. Declarer ruffed the spade high and led the king of diamonds, East taking the ace and returning a trump.

Here, also, South ruffed a spade in dummy and cashed the ace of clubs - but then came a parting of the ways.

Declarer realized that he would be running an unnecessary risk by continuing with the king of clubs, since it was conceivable that East might ruff it. Accordingly, he led a low club from dummy at this point, being perfectly willing to lose a club trick without a struggle in order to insure the contract.

West won the club with the six and led back the queen, but South was now home free. He ruffed the club return, drew East's last trump, and was then able to discard his heart loser on the king of clubs to bring himself to eleven solid tricks.

The exceptionally sound safety play paid exceptionally good dividends.

Arias' New Cabinet Stuns Spanish World

©The New York Times

Madrid — Spain's new premier, Carlos Arias Navarro, formed a new cabinet Thursday in his own image — politically conservative and strong on authority and order.

Arias, who succeeded the assassinated Premier Luis Carrero Blanco, made sweeping changes of personnel that left the Spanish political world somewhat stunned.

Eliminated from power after some 15 years in positions of command and influence were persons associated with the Roman Catholic lay movement, Opus Dei. So-called Opus Dei "technocrats" had led Spain's economic upsurge and had sought to end her economic and political isolation from the rest of Western Europe as well as from the Communist world.

Laureano Lopez Rodo, the best known figure in this group, was removed from the government after long years, first as minister of planning, then as foreign minister. In the latter post he was replaced by Pedro Cortina Y Mauri, the ambassador to France, who is a career diplomat.

The Falange movement, the semi-Fascist party that furnished Generalissimo Francisco Franco one of his major political props during the civil war and in the years following it, returned in force to the government after a long period of decline. Of the 20 members of the new cabinet, at least 10 were reported to have Falangist background.

The Falangists Thursday are an ill-defined group with many of the younger members taking positions of greater liberalism in political matters and more government control in economic affairs. Thus, it was difficult to predict just how energetically the government would move to satisfy the strong clamor in the country for greater possibilities of political expression and participation.

Two strongly conservative forces, Torcuato Fernandez Miranda, who had been acting premier following the assassination two weeks ago, and Gonzalo Fernandez de La Mora, the minister of public works and a right-wing ideologist, were both eliminated from the new cabinet.

That the government would emphasize order was indicated by the upgrading of the Ministry of the Interior, which is responsible for security. Arias, who held the post in the last government, named Jose Garcia Hernandez, a legal expert and deputy in parliament, as his replacement and also made him first deputy premier. Garcia is a well-known enemy of the Opus Dei.

Two other deputy premierships were created. The minister of finance, Antonio Barrera de Irimo, a holdover from the last cabinet, was given one and the minister of labor, Licio de La Fuente, also a holdover, was given the other. Both ministers are expected to play key roles this year as the Spanish economy faces the same kind of difficulties as the rest of Europe.

Many of the new ministers are personal friends of the premier and, like him, have no more definite political coloration than their fidelity to Franco and his general principles of government. This was a prime consideration in the designation of the premier himself. Such personal elements as loyalty and friendship, likes and dislikes, and the absence of definite political guidelines, cast uncertainty over the future course of Spanish domestic and foreign policies.

Jack Benny's Deduction For Donation Is Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has rejected comedian Jack Benny's attempt to deduct $154,000 from his income taxes for a donation of memorabilia to the University of California at Los Angeles.

Benny's lawyer said Thursday the deduction is similar to one President Nixon claimed for donating his vice presidential papers to the National Archives. The IRS accepted Nixon's claim.

The Benny case came to light when his attorney, Lawrence S. Kartiganer of Beverly Hills, Calif., filed an appeal of the IRS decision in U.S. Tax Court.

Benny and his wife are fighting government attempts to collect $109,081 in back taxes for 1967 and 1968.

As a deduction for charitable contributions, the Bennys in 1967 claimed $140,780 for giving the UCLA Library "a complete and unique collection of his works including radio and television scripts, recordings of radio shows, television shows and tapes and miscellaneous memorabilia," Kartiganer told the court.

The Bennys deducted $14,000 for a 1968 gift of "a collection of photographs, plaques and awards" to UCLA, the court papers said.

Kartiganer told a reporter that the memorabilia spanned at least 30 years of Benny's show business career.

The value of the donations was determined by Milton Luboviski, "a permanent and established appraiser who has had a long experience in appraising items of this type," Benny's appeal said.

The IRS wrote Benny that the deductions were rejected "because it has not been established that you owned the material."

Kartiganer said apparently the IRS views the donations as gifts of production rights to scripts, but he said that was not the case at all.

The scripts were appraised, not for their production value, but for their worth as the famous comedian's personal copies often including his handwritten notations, Kartiganer said.

The IRS further said, "in the event ownership is established...the deductions are limited to the fair market values." The IRS put a figure of $21,299 on the 1967 donation and $713 on the 1968 gift.

Bad-Luck Train Grinds To Halt

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Some 50 passengers from an Amtrak cross-country train boarded buses here Thursday to finish a trip they said was marred by frozen toilets, hot water taps that spit icicles and other hardships.

"This has been nothing but a bad luck train," said Bud Smith, a passenger from San Jose, Calif. "We just sat there in those cars with no heat, no nothing."

Smith and other passengers spoke bitterly as they waited for buses to carry them to the San Francisco Bay area. They had been put off the train more than 220 miles from their destination. The train left Chicago Monday on what was to have been a two-day trip to Oakland, Calif.

The train was stranded for more than 13 hours Monday night and early Tuesday at Galesburg, Ill., after water was mistakenly poured into a diesel fuel tank.

Passengers were told about 1 a.m. Thursday they would have to get off in Sparks, just east of Reno, and would be bused to California points. But when the train arrived, the buses were not in sight.

Four buses were parked one half block away, but weren't discovered until 5:30 a.m. Meanwhile the passengers sat in the cars while temperatures outside dipped to zero.

Linda Baker of San Francisco said she and other passengers spent most of the night in an unheated car only to learn the car behind them had heat.

Isaacs Guilty Of Murder

Donalsonville, Ga. (UPI) — Carl J. Isaacs, the first of three men to be tried for the slaughter of a prominent south Georgia farm family, was convicted Thursday on six counts of murder and sentenced to die in the electric chair.

Isaacs, whose 16-year-old brother Billy turned state's evidence against him, gnawed his fingernails as each of the 12 jurors was polled on the verdict.

It took the jury of seven blacks and five whites only 62 minutes to find Isaacs guilty, but it took them three hours and three faulty reports to sentence him to die for the six killings.

By Georgia law a jury must word a death sentence in a certain exact fashion and it took the panelists four efforts to get it right.

Isaacs was sentenced to die Feb. 15, but the death sentence in Georgia is automatically appealed and there was little likelihood his execution could come so soon.

8 Die In Rocket Barrage

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Communist-led rebels killed eight persons and wounded 37 in a rocket attack on Phnom Penh Wednesday night and Thursday, authorities reported.

The eight rockets fired into the capital made a total of 29 since Khmer Rouge insurgents began a terror campaign with rockets 12 days ago. A total of 22 persons have been killed and 61 wounded, police sources reported.

The insurgents have fired the 60-pound, 122mm rockets into the crowded city on seven out of the last 12 days, and U.S. diplomatic sources believe the rebels are capable of large barrages against the city like those in March and May of 1972.

In March 1972 insurgent forces fired about 150 rounds into the city on one day. In May they fired 50 or 60 in one night.

Col. Am Rong, the Cambodia command spokesman, said the Khmer Rouge resorted to rocket attacks against the city because they are too weak to attack the capital directly.

However, some Western observers feel the insurgents are firing marking rounds to gain accuracy for heavier barrages later.

A high U.S. diplomat said, "It's like the buzz bombs over London. It's supposed to shake up the people."

In other war action, field reports from north of the capital on Highway 5 said government operations to retake the Tep Bangsei pagoda have bogged down.

Across the Tonle Sap River, 13 miles north of the capital, government troops engaged insurgents along the river's east bank near the Cambodian army's fuel depot, field reports said. About 50 homes were destroyed in the crossfire of combat, the reports said.

On vital Highway 4 leading west from Phnom Penh to the sea, a government task force attempting to open the road 39 miles from the capital reported little progress Thursday after recapturing Talat on Wednesday.

Army Built Golf Course In Germany, GAO Says

Washington (UPI) — A U.S. Army captain laid out an 18-hole private golf course in Germany in 1972 and got a battalion of combat engineers to build it, according to a General Accounting Office (GAO) report released Thursday.

The report, released by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said the captain was paid 19,500 German marks — about $7,234 at current exchange rates — to draw up the plans in January, 1972, and bring in a 600-man engineer battalion and 137 pieces of earth-moving equipment to do the job.

Proxmire did not identify the Army captain, who is no longer in the service, nor the German woman who owned the eight acres of land where the course was built.

Although the Army now has the incident under investigation, Proxmire said, it took no action until it was "prodded into motion" by the GAO inquiry beginning in July, 1973. Proxmire asked the GAO to conduct the inquiry.

The GAO said it could not completely "clarify" the captain's role, but he apparently left his unit for about 10 days to lay out the golf course on land near Bad Muenster in southern Germany.

Then, according to the GAO, he returned to his headquarters about 30 miles away at Bad Kreuznach and sought to have the battalion assigned to build the golf course as a "community relations project." When that was rejected, it said, the 12th Engineering Battalion of the 8th Infantry Division scheduled a five-day "field exercise" on the site Jan. 24, 1972. It took along 34 armored personnel carriers, three tanks, a road grader, a bulldozer and a 20-ton crane.

"The first day and part of the second were spent in setting up the Bivouac area and in demolition training — blowing up trees," the GAO said. "The battalion spent the rest of the week cleaning up — chopping, sawing, dragging and burning trees."

The cost of the operation, according to the GAO, included $1,000 worth of fuel, $300 in explosives, $1,000 to replace two tents that burned down when they were accidentally ignited by sparks from the burning foliage.

NU Regents Set Election

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents will elect a new chairman and vice chairman at the board's monthly meeting 9 a.m. Saturday in Lincoln.

In other business, board members are expected to take final action on a proposal to allow both the American College Test (ACT) and the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) as admissions tests to undergraduate programs.

Acceptance of the proposal would permit the three university campuses to continue using different admissions tests.

The regents will also study bids for a College of Nursing building and the Nebraska Lions Eye Institute.

Terrorists Said Coordinating Plans

LONDON (AP) — British security forces are convinced that extremist guerrilla forces are linking up for coordinated terrorist campaigns throughout the world, an intelligence expert said Thursday.

The expert, a Briton who refused to be identified, said this new development in growing urban violence apparently is the result of a secret meeting a few weeks ago at an unspecified location.

He was commenting on a report in the Beirut daily newspaper Al Liwa that Palestinian guerrillas and the Irish Republican Army have agreed on joint acts of terrorism in Britain.

Previously the front organizations of guerrilla groups have met, largely to declare solidarity with each other. But they are now getting down to details and exchanging expertise, the informant said.

Scotland Yard said a report on three persons, including an 18-year-old American girl being questioned about arms smuggling, has been sent to the director of public prosecutions to decide whether the three will stand trial here, and on what charges, or whether they will simply be deported.

Police have ruled out the theory that the group intended to launch anti-Zionist attacks on British Jews, sources said. But the possibility of terrorism directed against Moroccan property or individuals in London is considered likely.

The three were arrested after the girl, identified by the U.S. Embassy as Allison Thompson of Santa Barbara, Calif., was found to have five pistols and 150 rounds of ammunition in her luggage at London's Heathrow Airport.

The other two, Abdelkhir Hakkaoui, 25, of Morocco, and Atler Naseen, 21, of Pakistan, were active in an extremist student group based in Santa Barbara, the sources said.

Although British security apparently was mystified about the group's immediate motives, the security expert noted that the method of arms smuggling — with a girl carrying the weapons — was typical of IRA tactics.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine — PFLP — which claimed responsibility for wounding British businessman Edward Sieff at his London home last Sunday, has close links with the IRA.

Abdelkhir Hakkaoui

A front organization for the PFLP has an office in Dublin, and is involved with both the Official and Provisional wings of the IRA.

The Middle East is fast becoming the major source of IRA arms, the security source said, since U.S. supply routes are drying up through lack of money and closer security checks.

He said that London is "wide open" to a sustained guerrilla attack, and the IRA and Palestinians could well be planning a major campaign here.

Immigration officials have been on full-scale alert for possible Arab terrorists since before Christmas. A list of more than 30 prime suspects has been circulated to all ports and airports.

After the Sieff shooting, several leading British Jews said they have been warned that Arab extremists have drawn up a "death list" of prominent British Zionists for execution.

Two Arabs — a Jordanian and a Lebanese — are being interrogated by police. They were arrested when they arrived from Damascus Sunday with forged entry visas.

Police said the two Arabs have no connection with the assassination attempt on Sieff or with the Santa Barbara group but have otherwise refused all comment on the case.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., friends contacted Thursday said Miss Thompson told them she was a high school sophomore in Carpinteria, Calif., in 1970 and 1971. She said on an employment application that she had graduated from a high school in Oregon.

An acquaintance said the girl told her that her mother was in a hospital in Las Vegas, Nev. Another said she was told the mother was in jail there.

Miss Thompson worked as a waitress and clothing model. "She never discussed politics," an acquaintance said. "The only thing she was interested in was fashions. She seemed to be in the drifter category."

School officials in Santa Barbara gave the spelling of one of the Arab men as Abdelkhir El-Hakkaoui and said he was president of the student body at Santa Barbara City College in the 1972-73 school year. Naseen also had been a student at the college, records showed.

Al Silvera, dean of student personnel at the college, said he knew El-Hakkaoui "very well and I am very much surprised regarding his arrest."

"I have the feeling until I know more... well, I would not be surprised to learn he is not as deeply involved as reported. He is an intense young man, a fine student, a fine person, a fine associate."

El-Hakkaoui entered the University of California-Santa Barbara last fall, but dropped out within a few weeks.

Friends said his father is an import-export dealer in Morocco, Paris and London and that the son was considering entering the business. They did not know the father's name.

El-Hakkaoui organized a statewide conference of junior college student government leaders, and was the only student invited to address the midwinter meeting of the California Junior College Association a year ago.

He also operated a clothing store called His and Hers, and acquaintances said they recalled seeing him with Miss Thompson.

EVERYONE'S BOOK IS NOW EVERYONE'S MOTION PICTURE

There once was a little book about a seagull... JONATHAN LIVINGSTON SEAGULL. He was no ordinary seagull. And it was no ordinary book. Pretty soon Jonathan was all America's favorite.

And now JONATHAN LIVINGSTON SEAGULL soars to the screen.

So visually stunning. So emotionally moving. So totally exhilarating it is a motion picture to see, and see again. And then see again with the entire family.

Float Better Buy

Dallas — Short Sport Signals while thinking that while I've always opposed wasting money on a Nebraska float for a New Year's parade, the money this year would have been better wasted on a float rather than that silly looking new Husker mascot head.

At least with a float, it would have been destroyed after one showing, but I guess we're going to have to live with that other ridiculous thing.

Nebraska fullback Maury Damkroger invited Husker head coach Tom Osborne to a post-curfew escapade during NU's Cotton Bowl preparations here.

Osborne was making the nightly midnight bed check and had visited with Damkroger in his room, then moved down to chat with linebackers Tom Ruud and Bob Nelson, who were in their room.

While chatting, there was a knock on the patio window of the Ruud-Nelson room and Osborne opened it. "Come on, Tom, let's go," Damkroger said, thinking he was talking to Ruud.

"Well, Maurice, where are we going," inquired the Husker coach and Damkroger, thus realizing his error, hustled back to his room. Punishment was meted out the next day on the practice field.

Fast Break Fails

Defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin describing Husker defensive end Steve Manstedt's 65-yard ramble with a fumble recovery against Texas. "We had an 11 on one fast break going and couldn't get it in."

Oklahoma head coach Barry Switzer, who made overtures a year ago, is talking to Nebraska defensive backfield coach Warren Powers again.

Powers isn't likely to be interested unless he could be the Sooners' defensive coordinator, a job now held by Larry Lacwell.

But the interest Switzer has shown in Powers might indicate Lacwell could be a solid candidate for one of the head coaching jobs still available around the country.

A Dallas writer describing the heavy influx of Nebraska fans (19,000 to 20,000) wrote, "Cornhusker fans showed up thicker than a New Year's Day tongue."

Trivia Item — Those Kilgore Rangerettes you saw on your TV set were performing in 30 degree weather without the warmth of pantyhose because their leader, Gussie Nell Davis, a female Gen. Patton, believes her girls should show their real legs.

Prefers Warm Weather Debts

Among the things Texas coach Darrell Royal said after denying reports he would be the next coach of the NFL New York Giants was, "Besides I'm so far in debt, I'll never get out. So I might as well be in debt where it's warm."

And Texas sports information director Jones Ramsey commenting on a report that Royal was going to the Giants, but that they weren't going to contact him until after the Cotton Bowl game, "Yeh, and I'm going to marry Elizabeth Taylor, but I'm not going to ask her until the bowl games are over."

Minnesota Vikings coach Bud Grant, whose Vikes beat the Cowboys here Sunday commenting on those spiking the ball antics you see after most touchdowns in pro football, "We don't have any rules against spiking the ball, but our players know they'd better not do it."

Presenting the 1973 Howard Brantz Award to KOLN-TV sports director Mark Ahmann, who sneaked his neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Smith, into all Cotton Bowl press functions under the guise of a KOLN-TV photog.

Mark, who shouldn't have to shovel snow or mow his lawn for the next year, is now taking names for next year's KOLN-TV bowl photographer.

A writer, who came here for the Cotton Bowl from the Big Eight Basketball Tournament, described it as "the eight worst teams I've ever seen under one roof."

Plainsmen Host Cage Tourney

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska Wesleyan hosts a three-team round-robin tournament Friday and Saturday nights at Ira J. Taylor Gym.

The Plainsmen, 6-3, play Dubuque, Iowa (1-3) at 8:30 p.m. Friday, while Midland (2-4) and Huron, S.D. (9-3), meet at 7 the same night.

On Saturday night NWU and Huron clash at 8:30 with Midland and Dubuque tangling at 7.

Huron appears to be the team favored to win both games as the South Dakotans are currently on an nine-game winning streak after opening the season with three consecutive losses.

One of Huron's victims is South Dakota State and the game was played in Brookings, S.D., the loser's home court.

Jerry Heard, a 6-7 center, paces Huron with a 26-point a game average and is also one of the club's top rebounders.

Dubuque is a young team with a lot of height and only one senior starter and is led by 6-7 freshman center Paul Ramey.

Midland is paced by 6-1 junior guard Mark Witte and 6-3 junior forward Tim Malhoit, who are both averaging about 16 points a game.

The Warriors lost their two top scorers and best rebounder off last year's team and also two of their top reserves.

The Plainsmen are expected to stay with their starting lineup that they've used most of the season.

The guards are 6-2 Lincoln East graduate Steve Joekel and 5-10 Lincoln High graduate Bob Knollenberg, forwards 6-3 Norris graduate Dean DeBoer and 6-6 Lincoln Northeast graduate John Strain and 6-7 Fairbury graduate Gene Parks.

NWU statistics:

Howard May Play In Japan Next Year

Detroit (AP) — Towering Frank Howard, who led the American League in home runs in 1968 with 44, says he may be playing baseball in Japan next year.

Howard, who holds four major league records, played for the Detroit Tigers for the last part of the 1972 season and all of last year. He was released by the Tigers and turned down a job as a minor league manager with the Detroit organization last year.

AP CHOOSES NOTRE DAME

Nebraska Gains Seventh Place

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — "I don't know what else you could ask for," said Notre Dame's Ara Parseghian, whose Fighting Irish completed an 11-0 season with a 24-23 victory over Alabama in the Sugar Bowl and won the 1973 national college football championship.

Notre Dame's triumph over the previously unbeaten and top-ranked Crimson Tide earned the Irish their first national title since 1966—an honor the 50-year-old Parseghian believes his squad richly deserves.

"What has been demanded of us, we have satisfied," he said Thursday after the final results of the Associated Press poll were announced. "This doesn't imply that the other teams are not good teams, but I think a premium is placed on going totally unscathed."

Notre Dame received 33 first-place votes and 1,128 points from a national panel of 60 sports writers and broadcasters. Ohio State, a 42-21 winner over Southern California in the Rose Bowl for a 10-0-1 season, finished second in the poll. The Buckeyes received 11 first-place votes and 1,002 points.

Oklahoma, also 10-0-1 but ineligible to compete in a bowl game because of recruiting violations, garnered the other 16 first-place votes and wound up third with 965 points.

Alabama, No. 1 going into the bowl games, tumbled to fourth in the final balloting with 834 points. Penn State, 12-0-0 after defeating Louisiana State 16-9 in the Orange Bowl, wound up fifth with 709 points.

Michigan, 10-0-1 including a 10-10 tie with Ohio State, was sixth, followed by Nebraska, Southern Cal, and Arizona State and Houston, which tied for ninth.

Texas Tech led the second 10. Then came UCLA, LSU, Texas, Miami of Ohio, North Carolina State, Missouri, Kansas, Tennessee and Maryland and Tulane, tied for 20th.

Parseghian, who has coached the Irish for 10 seasons, said the designation of a national champion is "mythical, at best, and we're dealing in opinions. Everybody played 10 or 11 game schedules, but only three were able to go through unbeaten and untied—Miami of Ohio, Penn State and Notre Dame.

"We played the No. 1 team. Unfortunately, Penn State didn't have the opportunity to play No. 1."

This year, he said, the Irish, "demonstrated that no one can beat us, and we beat the No. 1 team. I'd like to think we could beat just about anybody we played."

Parseghian said that by being No. 1, the pressure would be on the Irish next season. But for now, he just wants to sit back and savor the status.

"It's beautiful," he said. "I'm just delighted and tickled to death."

"I want to enjoy this year for a while."

Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama conceded his team blew its chance to finish first but added: "I think most people probably feel we're something better than the fourth team in the nation."

Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes, however grudgingly, accepted the views of the voters.

"If they listed us No. 2," Hayes said, tersely, "that's what they believe."

Hayes had said after the Rose Bowl that he believed the Buckeyes should be No. 1 but added, "I wouldn't trade this victory for anything."

Joe Paterno, Penn State coach, said, "Well, naturally I'm not pleased with it. But I don't think it matters where you finish if you're not No. 1. I think we have as much right to be No. 1 as anybody else."

1 Notre Dame (33)	11-0-1	1,128

Switzer Disappointed With Final Ratings

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—

Coach Barry Switzer and his Oklahoma Sooners expressed disappointment Thursday at The Associated Press' final football poll, but not because the Sooners weren't ranked No. 1.

Oklahoma dropped to third in the final ratings behind top-ranked Notre Dame, which defeated previously No. 1 ranked Alabama in the Sugar Bowl, and Ohio State, 42-21 winner over Southern California in the Rose Bowl.

"It didn't surprise me at all," said Switzer. "I felt we didn't have much chance to be No. 1 because we did not have an opportunity to perform."

The Sooners, as result of an NCAA probation, were unable to accept a bowl invitation and won't be going bowling next year during the New Year's holiday.

Switzer said he felt all along that the lack of exposure during the nationally televised bowl games would prevent the Sooners from ascending to the top rung of the AP poll.

He said, "Notre Dame beat Alabama, the No. 1 team, and I felt like they would move up."

"The only thing that disappoints me is that we were not No. 2. That would have been three years in a row. This is the best team we've had since I've been here and we are ranked the lowest."

"Golly," said Sooner defensive end Mike Struck from his home in Clinton, "I didn't think they'd do that to us. But I was afraid they might forget us—and they did."

Switzer, who had just returned from Dallas where he watched Nebraska's 19-3 win over Texas, noted the nice things some opposing players had said about the Sooners.

"We won the players' poll, anyway," he said. "The Southern California players say we're the best and so did Miami. They took a poll of the Miami players and we got 34 votes to two for Alabama and three for Notre Dame. Texas and Nebraska also said we should have been No. 1."

Despite the final ratings, Switzer said he is still "kind of opposed" to a national playoff system because of the pressures it would put on the players.

"There would be great pressures on players, the testing and so many other things involved. Now the bowl games are relaxed and rewarding," he said.

He said he did not know how a playoff would be feasible, "but it is the only solution to the mythical national champion. That is obvious this year because so many people can lay claim to it."

Said Oklahoma Athletic Director Wade Walker, "A playoff is the only feasible way if we really are to determine a national champion."

Heck Propels Creighton Win

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Creighton has found happiness in 7-0 Papillion sophomore Mike Heck and a 2-3 zone defense.

Heck led the Bluejays here Thursday night at Civic Auditorium in that 2-3 zone to a 79-61 win over San Diego State.

The victory boosted Creighton's record to 7-3, while the Aztecs dropped to 3-6.

Heck, in a second straight starting role, anchored the 2-3 zone to stymie San Diego State.

The Aztecs, who never led, could only make 11 of 35 from the field in the first half and 26 of 75 overall.

The Jays, meanwhile, made 20 of 33 field goals in the first half and 37 of 64 overall.

Besides keeping San Diego State outside most of the game with the 2-3 zone, Creighton also was in good position for rebounding.

At the half, the Aztecs only had 11 rebounds to the Jays' 23 and finished with 27 to Creighton's 43.

With nine minutes left in the game, coach Eddie Sutton sent in his reserves with his team leading, 58-36.

The Jays reserves continued to keep San Diego State off balance, also with a 2-3 zone.

One of the reasons Creighton won was the fact that Steve Coop was held to 2 of 9 field goals and 2 of 4 free throws and 6 rebounds. Coop, a 6-7 sophomore forward, earlier engineered the Aztecs' 88-75 upset win over Kansas State by scoring 39 points.

"Our defense was definitely the key to the game," Sutton said.

"We're able to make Mike Heck more effective with our zone because he can rest more on defense, which helps him rebound and shoot with more strength," he said.

Heck finished with 7 of 10 from the field and had 9 rebounds.

Schuyler senior Gene Harmon made 11 of 17 field goals, Ted Wuebben 6 of 10 and Doug Brookings 5 of 8 for Creighton.

Creighton's next game is Saturday at Butler (Ind.) while the Aztecs take on Oklahoma the same night at Norman.

Sweeney 'Undecided'

Seattle (AP) — Washington State University football Coach Jim Sweeney said Thursday it's still up in the air whether he'll take the head coaching job at the University of Colorado.

"The Colorado job is one of the best jobs in the country," Sweeney said in a telephone interview. "I felt that talking to me was certainly not out of order for any coach."

Sweeney said he visited the Boulder campus Dec. 30 and 31 "with the knowledge of" WSU President Glenn Terrell. Since then, he said, talks with Colorado officials have been "in a private stage."

He refused to say what he had been offered or what it would take to get him to accept the Colorado job.

"I have talked to Colorado and have given them by projection, and they have given me their projection," Sweeney said. Neither he nor Colorado has made a decision, he added.

Baseball To Adopt Energy-Saving Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Thursday the sport has taken steps to reduce its energy consumption by 25 per cent next season.

Kuhn also told newsmen the program would not reduce baseball employment.

Kuhn said the energy-saving plans included reducing charter flights by 50 per cent, eliminating or substantially curtailing the use of lights before a game and starting night games at times that take into account local utility peak load factors.

Kuhn made his comments to newsmen after he and some 30 other representatives of sports and recreation organizations met for an hour with Federal Energy Office officials.

John C. Sawhill, deputy administrator of the FEO, said most of the associations agreed to try to reduce energy consumption by 20 to 25 per cent.

$100,000 Purse Offered For Race

Miami (AP) — Calder Race Course officials said Thursday they have offered a $100,000 purse for a match race between Desert Vixen, the champion American filly, and Dahlia, the European champion filly.

If side bets already offered are accepted, the officials said, the offer could become a $500,000 race.

He congratulated Kuhn for baseball's conservation plan, saying: "The great American game of baseball has recognized the true dimensions of our current energy crisis and voluntarily planned a program that will benefit the entire American public."

"We don't want to reduce participation in sports, or reduce sports itself, but we want to use the energy more efficiently."

The major recommendation, according to Sawhill, was to encourage sports fans to use public transportation and car pools to get to and from sports events.

"The ball clubs will need assistance from local mass transit operators, utilities and especially their fans to carry out this program," Sawhill said.

In one of the proposals at the meeting, Sawhill said, the American Power Boat Association said it would schedule shorter events and encourage local participation.

Kuhn, in his general outline, said baseball will develop a series of public service messages by players and other personalities urging the public to conserve energy. He said the messages would be broadcast on radio and television.

In answer to questions, Kuhn said baseball had not considered playing all games during the day because "that would cause a substantial change in the game." He also said the 1974 schedule of 162 games would not be reduced and pregame batting practice would not be eliminated.

Kuhn added that he did not believe it was realistic to realign the American and National leagues in 1974 or 1975.

Huey Named Coach At New Mexico

Albuquerque, N.M. (UPI) — Wyoming assistant coach Gene Huey has been named receiver coach at the University of New Mexico. UNM head football coach Bill Mondt announced Thursday.

Huey was a star receiver for Wyoming from 1966-68 and set 13 pass catching records as split end. He was a co-captain of the 1968 Cowboy team which won a third straight Western Athletic Conference title.

Northwestern Bell Hike Cut

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer
The Nebraska Public Services Commission Thursday granted Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. of Omaha less than half of the $6 million rate hike it had requested.

The exact impact of the commission's decision on the monthly billings of phone subscribers was not immediately known, but the action apparently dooms Northwestern Bell's efforts to double the cost of pay phone calls from ten to twenty cents.

The dollar and cents meaning to the ratepayer will not be known until Northwestern Bell resubmits a rate schedule in accord with the new revenue total. Advertising, Lobbying

In arriving at the decision, the commission's fiscal scalpel hit hardest on Northwestern Bell's advertising and lobbying budgets. One-half of the firm's expenditures for advertising and lobbying were axed.

According to Herb Sherdon, the commission's communications chief, the firm's advertising accounted for $480,000 during the fiscal 1972, while it spent $123,000 on lobbying. Sherdon noted that not all of those amounts were affected by the request before the commission.

Instead the commission approved an increase of $2.2 million in revenue this year.

The commission found Northwestern Bell's rate of return for fiscal 1973 was 7.88%. Their $6 million request would have given them a 9.4 to 9.7% rate of return. The commission's action provided for an 8.5% rate of return on a base of $178.9 million.

8.3% Too High
A year ago, the commission held an 8.3% rate of return was too high for Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. and suggested the proper rate would be 7.5%.

Sherdon explained the difference in the rates of return allowed the two companies is attributable to differences in time and fiscal conditions within the firms.

The rate increase being sought by Northwestern Bell would raise charges for local service, service connections, mobile phones and pay phones. The rate increase would not alter charges for local distance rates.

Sherdon said it is not known whether LT&T will seek a similar rate hike in the future.

During public hearings around the state, Northwestern Bell said the rate increase of $6 million was needed to offset $4 million in additional wages and taxes. In addition, the firm said the 7.75% rate of return allowed by the commission is no longer adequate.

Building Permits Total $1 Million

The City Building Inspections Division reported that 85 permits were issued during the month of December for construction totaling $1 million in Lincoln.

Of the 85 permits issued, 33 were recorded for new construction totaling $841,229.

According to the records, 18 permits were taken out for construction of new single family homes, totaling $272,668, while one permit was taken out for a new duplex, for $27,163, and two permits were taken out for new apartments, totaling $151,000.

Four permits were issued for construction of a new industrial warehouses, for $46,458, while two permits were issued during December for new stores, for $11,970, and one permit was issued for a new office building, for $304,000.

One permit also was taken out for a new educational building, scheduled to cost $20,000.

A total of 17 permits were registered for alterations to structures, totaling $154,751, while 35 permits were registered for alterations to structures, totaling $90,540.

Of the $1,086,520 in construction recorded in for the month, the Building Inspections Division collected $2,937 in fees.

Merwick Appointed Mayor's Assistant

A 10-year veteran of the Fire Department will become Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf's administrative assistant starting Monday.

Schwartzkopf announced Thursday that Michael Merwick, 31, will take on the post at an annual salary of $14,277.

Merwick, 1014 Eldon Dr., is a fire inspector and is expected to resign from the department this week.

He was appointed fire inspector in 1966. In 1971 he was named to Gov. J. J. Exon's State Fire Marshal Advisory Committee.

Active in state and local firefighter activities, Merwick was elected president of the State Fire Fighters Association in 1967 and in 1971. He also has served as president of the Nebraska Arson Investigators Association.

Merwick replaced William Cooley, who resigned as the mayor's assistant last October to become public information director of the Southeast Nebraska Technical College.

Schwartzkopf said Merwick's duties would include handling public relations, inter-department coordination, citizens complaints and general city government matters.

The mayor said Merwick is "capable of working with the public as he has done in the past" and said Merwick's knowledge of Lincoln "will be invaluable to my office."

A graduate of Lincoln Pius X, Merwick attended the University of Nebraska and has been active in such civic groups as the Lincoln Jaycees, Sertoma Club and a director of the Volunteer Bureau.

He is married and has three children.

Officials Seek Housing For 40 Victims Of Fire

Alliance (AP) — State Red Cross and Department of Economic Development officials will meet Friday in an attempt to work out housing arrangements for 40 persons left homeless by a fire at the Flora Apartments Tuesday night.

The apartment house, valued at $250,000, was destroyed. Alliance Fire Chief L. E. Overstreet said Thursday the cause of the fire has not been determined.

Most of the fire victims were taken to the Drake Hotel in Alliance, where temporary Red Cross headquarters were established.

Fourteen persons remained at the hotel Thursday.

City Manager Robert Placek said the city government is working with the Red Cross in providing aid for the victims of the fire.

The Guardian State Bank of Alliance has been accepting donations on behalf of the Red Cross. About $1,000 had been raised by late Thursday.

Fire Hydrant Freezes

For 14 hours firemen battled a blaze that destroyed a neighborhood grocery in Butte, Mont. As temperatures sank to 25 degrees below zero, the firemen had to battle the ice as well. Fire hoses were left running at all times to keep them from freezing up in minutes. And several streets were closed after a sheet of ice several inches thick formed on the pavement.

Hospital's Addition To Be Opened Soon

Omaha (AP) — A spokesman said Thursday Methodist Hospital in Omaha plans to move patients into its new three-story addition about Jan. 6.

The addition completes a three-stage, $4.9 million construction project under way since 1972.

The spokesman said the project includes the cost of some remodeling in the main hospital. It will start after the addition is occupied. The addition will boost the hospital's bed total by 22 to 376.

One new floor, designated the special care pavilion, will have three 12-bed units equipped with patient monitoring equipment.

They will be for intensive care, coronary intensive care and intermediate care patients.

The pavilion will replace the present 14-bed intensive and coronary care unit. It will be remodeled into additional surgical recovery rooms and waiting areas.

The addition, adjoining the hospital to the south, also houses business offices, a data processing center and an expanded cafeteria. The present cafeteria will be remodeled.

Other construction phases were expansion of parking in 1972 and a new two-level entrance in 1973.

Fire Damage Extensive At Lincoln Carpet Mills

Two hundred seventy feet of carpet 12 feet wide and some equipment were extensively damaged by fire at the Lincoln Carpet Mills at Air Park West late Thursday afternoon.

Fire Inspector Fred Soflin said the cause of the blaze was still under investigation, but speculated that the carpet moving through a treatment oven became entangled around rollers in the oven.

Soflin said the oven had only been in use for three days.

One factor contributing to the severity of the fire was that no water was supplied to the automatic sprinkler system inside the dryer.

Soflin said the two 500-degree sprinkler heads had opened but there was no water connected to the line feeding them.

Also adding to the intensity of the blaze, Soflin said, was a delay in notifying the fire department of the fire.

Soflin said he counted at least 34 fire extinguishers which had been emptied by employees at the mill before the fire department was called.

Mailing Of Welfare Checks Delayed By Computer Snafu

By The Associated Press
State Welfare Director Lawrence Graham said Thursday mailing of some welfare checks was delayed this month because of a computer delay at Social Security offices at Baltimore, Md.

Aged and disabled welfare checks are mailed normally on the first of the month.

Graham said the Social Security office sends the state three computer tapes each month containing the names of Nebraska welfare recipients. One of the three tapes had not arrived Thursday.

Graham said the state was prepared to make arrangements for the payments if the tape does not arrive soon, and Gov. J. J. Exon said no welfare recipients would be disadvantaged because of the delay.

Termite Business Big In California

Los Angeles (AP) — Termites are rarely seen and never heard as they munch their way through life. But their size notwithstanding, they are big business in California.

Californians pay more than $30 million a year to rid their homes, offices and apartments of termites. An estimated 4,000 firms exist to perform that task.

Termites have been around for more than 250 million years and are found throughout the world. In the United States, they cause several hundred million dollars in damage every year.

But in California, with its prevailing warm and humid coastal weather, has a worse termite problem than most other states.

Some people think the concern over termites has been blown out of proportion. After all, how often do you hear of a home falling over because the owner didn't bother with termites?

Well, termite experts reply, you do hear about homes or portions of them falling down because of sonic booms or earthquakes. Often, they say, they toppled because termites had weakened their support.

Roy J. Pence, an entomologist at the University of California at Los Angeles, says termites can hollow a piece of wood without ever breaking the surface.

"They have an instinctive capacity to structurally demolish a place yet at the same time not make it fall down, barring unforeseen circumstances," Pence said.

Although there are some 2,000 species of termites, there are only three types of significance in California: subterranean — most common in the United States — drywood and dampwood. They range from one-quarter inch long to perhaps an inch when they have wings.

The subterranean termite lives in the ground, taking the moisture it needs from the soil. It feeds on roots, but ventures above ground through dirt tubes for new food supplies such as a house.

The drywood termite needs much less moisture to live. If the wood in which it dwells is moistened by fog or some other source, that's enough to keep it going.

The dampwood also lives in the wood it is eating but requires more moisture. The dampwoods are far less prevalent in California than the other two.

All three live in colonies of as many as 3,000 insects. There are a king and queen for reproduction. Some of the termites are soldiers who protect the colony from ants and other enemies.

Then there are the nymphs. They feed the king, queen and soldiers. They are the culprits who eat the wood.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

Forecast For Friday

The Aquarian child seldom is satisfied only with schoolwork. These children desire something extra. Parents should cooperate with teachers to enable this youngster to participate in special program which aids in satisfying a need for self-expression. The Aquarian boy or girl appears unorthodox; this should not be interpreted as being uncooperative. Instead, encouragement should be given this child in sense that materials are made available for unique projects.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid extravagance. You can't have everything at once. Know it and pull in financial reins. Review budget. Friend with grandiose notions means well but probably is misinformed. Protect your own interests. Don't delegate responsibility.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): One in authority may expect too much, too soon. Key now is to speak to express yourself in definite manner. You will receive respectful attention. Leo-Aquarius individuals could be involved. Opportunity for advancement is on horizon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Tread lightly, be subtle rather than direct. You frighten prospects if tactics are of overwhelming variety. Keep a secret. Look beyond the immediate. Teach and learn. Sharper intuitive process. Family member surprises with unorthodox request, procedure.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Friend who seems generous may be so — with your money. Know when the draw line is. Be sociable but realize you cannot actually buy affection. Many around you now appear to be throwing caution to winds. Be grown-up enough to recognize foolishness when you see it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be careful with details. Don't overlook what appears minor but could be major in importance. Scorpio, Aquarius persons could figure prominently. Mate, partner wants to expand, spend, reach settlement. Check with one in authority.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Communications snarl occurs unless you double-check. Take nothing for granted. Investigate. Find reasons. Analyze. Do some detective work. You are on verge of creative discovery. Know it and be confident. Gemini could be in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Check diet. Also, consult with physician — cycle is such that you may be prone to excessive sweets. Some family members want to make a move. Investigate costs. Taurus person could aid in ferreting out hidden money pitfalls.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pleasant discovery features value of property. You may be worth more than originally estimated. But don't let judgment be clouded by first offer. Some tricky legal details could be involved. Know it and act in conservative manner when talking sale or purchase.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You receive backing from source that appeared disinterested. You are given chance to prove major point. Do so in methodical manner. Eschew the sensational. Older individual may be staking reputation on your theory or ability.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Highlight creativity. Stick to your own style. Refuse to be chided, caliged into any mold. You have right to live your own life. Know it and make it crystal clear to any who doubt or dispute it. Aries could be involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Some untold wishes, hopes and desires can be fulfilled in realistic manner. There will be no white charger, no prince and slipper, but you will know what to do and how to do it. Leo will be around, and you will know it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Interference merris, indirect calls, messages are featured. You may find yourself a center of intrigue. Maintain aplomb, balance — and honor. You teach and learn. You find that inner feelings may be more significant than outside counsel.

TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you were your own person in sense that older persons disillusioned you. You will be in business for yourself this year. You will be investing in your own talents, abilities and beliefs. If single, you may marry, with September and June highlight months. Emotional wound will heal. (Discover your love and money mates! School Goes On Despite Disastrous Losses In Polk Fire

Elementary School Replaced By House, Church Basements

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
Polk — Make no mistake — the fire that destroyed this town's elementary school Dec. 22 was a disaster.

Student records, faculty W-2 forms, science equipment, desks, books, an excellent stereo system and a new TV monitor for education programs went up in smoke along with the 64-year-old building.

The fire was so hot, school district employees recall, that school lunch change was fused together in a safe, while paper money was reduced to ashes.

But Thursday those concerned were taking the experience in stride with as much cheerfulness as the situation would allow. Grade school children attended classes in three church basements, as well as a vacant house across the street from both the burned grade school and the high school.

Polk schools Superintendent Walter Nielsen was setting up a makeshift office in the back room of the house-turned-school Thursday morning, while his wife, language arts teacher Jean Nielsen, taught an eighth grade class in the living room.

One Day Lost

New Low Records Are Set

Along with the temperatures, low mercury record marks continued tumbling Thursday in Nebraska.

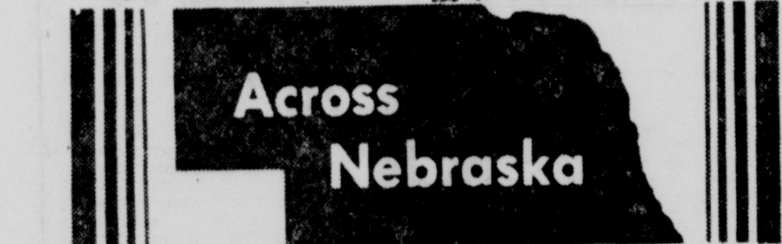

At both North Platte and Scottsbluff, record lows of 23 degrees below zero were chalked up Thursday, coldest spots in the state. The mark erased the old record for the day — 22 degrees below zero set in both cities in 1911.

Lincoln's low for the day was 15 below, only two degrees higher than the day's record low of minus 17 established in 1887.

According to the State Department of Roads, highways in the Grand Island, Broken Bow and Ord areas were snowpacked Thursday with ice in sheltered areas. In the Mullen-Thedford area roads were ice covered in sheltered areas, while east of Hastings highways were snowpacked and partly covered with ice.

Lincoln area roads were reported near normal.

Friday's forecast called for a chance of snow in the southeast at night. Partly cloudy weather is expected to continue through Saturday with temperatures due to rise up to the middle teens Friday in the southeast.

Hearing Set For Wood River

Wood River — A public hearing has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 15, at the City Hall here to discuss the proposed water treatment works and possible effects on the environment.

Ministerial Scholarship Fund Founded

Crete — Doane College was recently awarded $5,000 to establish a ministerial scholarship in memory of James and Mary Ann McClung, early Nebraska pioneers. The scholarship fund was given to the college by a son, the Rev. Arthur J. McClung of Rock Island, Ill., with the request that it be awarded to the student planning a life of fulltime service in the church.

KSC To Host Band, Choral Clinic

Kearney — The Kearney State College Department of Music will host the fourth annual high school band and choral clinic Sunday and Monday, Jan. 20-21. Activities scheduled include laboratory experiences with the clinic band and chorus as well as recreation and social activities. Dr. Gary Thomas, head of the Department of Music, is serving as clinic organizer.

Seminars Planned For Lawyers

Superior (UPI) — Two traveling seminars have been scheduled Jan. 11 and 12 for outstate lawyers by the Nebraska Association of Trial Attorneys. David Downing of Superior, president of the association, said the seminars will feature trial lawyers from Omaha and Lincoln areas. Subjects will include medical malpractice and products liability litigation from the viewpoints of both plaintiffs and defendants. The Jan. 11 seminar will be at the Holiday Inn at Kearney, and the Jan. 12 session will be at the Ramada Inn at North Platte.

Chadron's Salt Supply Running Low

Chadron (UPI) — City Manager Carl Rehman said Chadron's salt supply to deice streets was nearly exhausted. The city manager said in past years the situation would have presented "no problem" since the city could obtain the salt from its Hutchinson, Kan., supplier on about 24 hours notice. This year, Rehman said truckers were "reluctant" to haul the salt to Chadron out of fear they would run out of fuel. Rehman said the city has already used 300 tons of salt, compared with the 200 tons used all last winter.

grade lost just one day of school," Nielsen said, so teachers could get oriented to their new surroundings. High school students didn't miss a day, he noted.

The availability of the vacant house was fortunate, he said, because it provides a convenient classroom location for seventh and eighth graders, who have to shuttle back and forth to the high school just across the street for shop, science and home ec classes.

Nielsen praised the school board and grade school faculty for "hard work" in recovering from the fire, and thanked four local churches — Baptist, Methodist, Evangelical Free Church and Lutheran — for offering space. All but the Lutheran Church are being used for classes, he said.

School districts as far away as Kearney and Minden called after the fire offering books, desks and all kinds of equipment, Nielsen said. Since the fire destroyed all the grade school desks, Stromsburg-donated desks are being used, along with books from Aurora, Stromsburg and Educational Service Unit No. 7.

Up To Board
Nielsen said $296,000 worth of insurance on the building and contents would make a nice start toward building a new school. But he added that the school board's decision won't be known at least till after its meeting at 8 p.m. next Monday in the high school library.

At that time, he said, ideas will be solicited from "all patrons in the district." There will be an hour of public input before the board meets at 9 p.m., he said.

The current classroom setup will continue all this year, Nielsen said.

In the next room secretary Mrs. Marjorie Ehn was struggling to reassemble financial records from faculty members' salary check stubs. "But a lot of them don't even keep them," she lamented.

"And the cooks — you don't have any records of theirs at all," she added. "If they're on an hourly basis, they're just lost."

'Too Late'
Mrs. Ehn said she had planned to bring W-2 materials home with her on Monday, Dec. 24, and work on the tax forms over Christmas. "But that was too late," she said with a sigh.

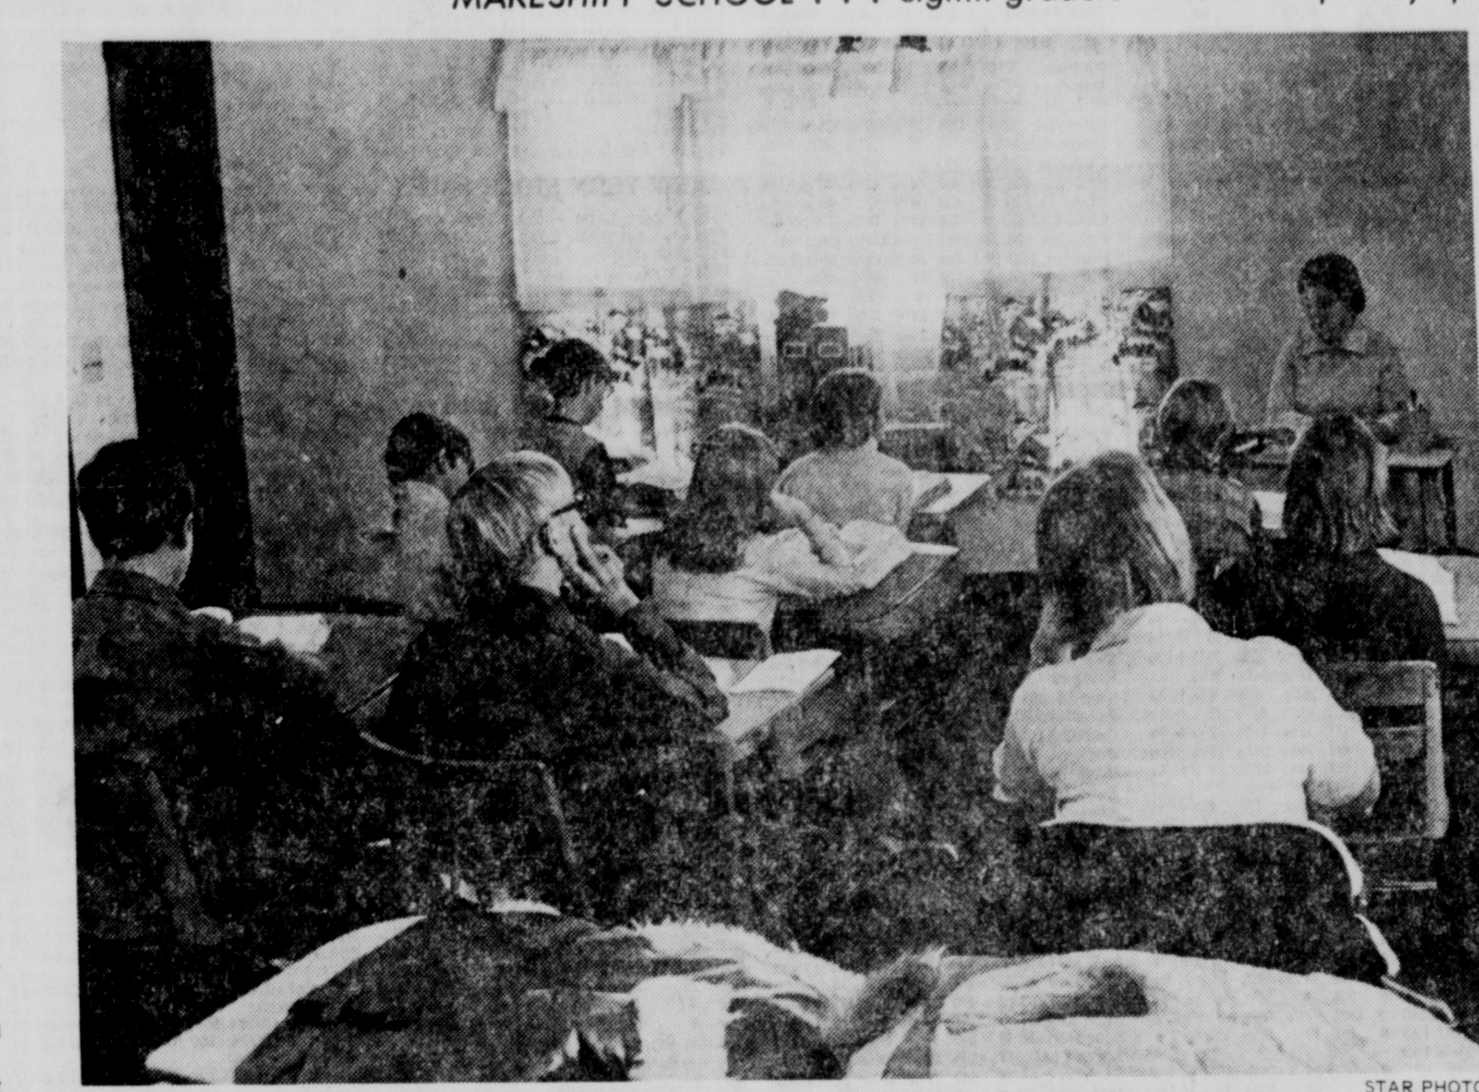

"I'm glad I didn't know the school was burning," Mrs. Ehn said. "They'd have had a hard time keeping me out of there. I would have wanted to go in after my book. Mr. Nielsen wanted to go in too."

The most cheerful person in evidence was Mrs. Nielsen, who said she was pleased with her classroom setup. "And the kids just think it's lots of fun," she said.

"You couldn't imagine the joy when one brings back an old book he had at home and says, 'Hey! I've got a spelling book!' or 'Hey! I've got a reading book!'"

"We've been saying we've never had such a pretty classroom," said Mrs. Nielsen, pointing to the carpeting, lacy curtains and lantern-style light fixtures her "cottage" sports. "We may never want to go back."

"Our hot lunch program isn't worth a darn these days, though," she said, explaining that the kids are bringing sack lunches and school is providing milk.

Shortage Pinches Hog Farmers

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

A shortage of phosphoric acid used in manufacturing Di-Calium-Phosphate, a feed ingredient vital to strong bones and good health in hogs is causing many farmers to reconsider their plans to produce pigs.

Coupled with the already planned 3% reduction in hog farrowing by Nebraska farmers, the shortage of Di-Cal, as it is known to farmers, could lead to further reduction in the supply of pork and higher prices of meat for the nation's consumers.

So acute is the problem that University of Nebraska livestock specialists are assembling a team of experts with knowledge of livestock feed needs, biochemists and fertilizer chemical experts to seek alternative sources of the vital feed additive.

"We first heard about it around two weeks ago. We also understand it is a problem in Illinois and many other states that raise hogs. It is a part of the general shortage of phosphorus which is used as fertilizer as well as in feed," said Dr. Bill Ahlschwede, swine specialist at NU.

"There are substitutes such as buying commercial feeds or premixes that contain it but these sources will be likely to be expensive. I would presume these suppliers also sell Di-Cal so they would protect their premix industry first," he said.

Dr. Ernest Peo, a swine nutritionist at the University, adds that farmers who mix their own feed may turn to meat and bone scraps, steamed bone meal, tankage or even fertilizer as a source of phosphorus.

"I suspect these sources will tighten up quickly as the feed companies seek alternative supplies of mineral for their formulations. Fertilizer is a possibility but many fertilizers contain too much fluoride for livestock feeds," he said.

Peo said that if chemical tests of fertilizer such as ammonia phosphate were made it may be possible to develop a ration for hogs. He also suggested that farmers may be able to cut back on mineral use in feed rations somewhat but warned that cutting back on phosphorus would require a cut in calcium as well in order to balance the two feed ingredients properly.

"It is also needed by cattle but the big requirement is for hogs. They need it for strong legs, to prevent rickets and other forms of crippling," he said.

Peo said it is possible that some hog producers would cut back on production because of the shortage. "I am concerned about the pigs when they reach 100 lbs. We could see a lot of crippled hogs and broken legs," he said.

"Last year it was the protein crunch, this year it is the shortage of Di-Cal that is hurting livestock producers," he said.

Robert A. Olson, professor of agronomy and an expert on soil chemicals, blamed the government regulations for the shortage. "The price controls, the devaluation of the dollar and other regulations made it more attractive to sell these products overseas than in the United States. The fertilizer industry has been in financial trouble for some time so you can't really blame them for selling their product for the highest price they can get," he said.

Olson said the manufacture of Di-Cal is relatively simple compared to the processes used for making fertilizer so it usually was cheaper than fertilizer types of phosphorus.

"Things are so messed up now that it is hard to say what the factors are involved in pricing but now when Di-Cal is available at all it is about as high as fertilizer grades," he said.

Olson said some fertilizer tags would list fluoride content and some may not. "If it is made with white acid it shouldn't have much fluoride in it because the process would drive the fluoride out so it should be safe for feed. A test could be made to determine the usefulness of feed at any good laboratory," he said.

A spokesman for Harris Laboratories in Lincoln said: "We haven't had any requests for such a test but we can do them if enough people want us to run the tests to make it worthwhile."

Dr. Tom Sullivan, NU poultry specialist, has worked on phosphorus problems in livestock nutrition for several years. "We could conduct feeding trials in about three weeks time. I would be concerned about how available these alternative sources of phosphorus would be, particularly to young animals. They may have problems with some types of phosphorus alternatives," he said.

Sullivan noted that poultrymen also need the product in their feed formulations.

Sullivan said he would contact several experts in various departments at the University to see if a team to aid farmers in testing and finding new alternative sources of phosphorus could be set up.

Robert Hill, associate professor of biochemistry and nutrition, is getting geared up to run the tests for farmers and livestock feeders.

"We have ordered an electric device to run the tests for fluoride and should have the part in a week or so. I expect the cost of running the test will be somewhere between $4 and $5," he said.

Hill said farmers or feeder with an immediate problem requiring answers for possible substitutes for use in feeds to replace Di-Cal should contact him or Dr. Sullivan through their county agents.

"We don't exactly know just what we are dealing with today but we will have a system of handling these samples and be able to make some specific recommendations to farmers within a few days," he said.

Exon's Endorsement Defended By Whelan

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Gerald T. Whelan of Hastings, candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, has defended Gov. J. James Exon's endorsement of his candidacy.

He also criticized another Hastings resident, Republican gubernatorial candidate Richard Marvel.

Whelan told a news conference Thursday that his candidacy is a gamble which represents an act of "genuine political responsibility."

He said Exon was trying to avoid a situation that "would not be good for the state — the nomination as lieutenant governor of someone he might like but whose views he may not share."

Whelan said Marvel "is a fine man, but he will not give you a vote if it involves any kind of political trouble. . . He simply will not take a stand if there is any political danger."

"Whoever writes volume two of 'Profiles in Courage' will not include Sen. Marvel," Whelan said.

Whelan said Sen. Jules Burach of Crofton should run for governor, not the number two spot on the ticket, because he and Exon disagree on some fundamental issues.

Whelan said Burbach is "a fine man," but that he should run for governor himself and pick a running mate who shares his views.

Firing Of Wayne Police Chief OKd

Wayne (UPI) — A three-member Civil Service Commission has upheld the firing of police chief Vern Fairchild by Mayor Kent Hall.

Fairchild was fired once by Hall earlier this year, but a district court judge ruled that he deserved the right of a civil service commission procedure.

The commission said Wednesday its decision to back Hall hinged on the outcome of the public hearing to be held at a later date on the allegations against Fairchild.

Fairchild declined comment because his case is still in progress.

After Fairchild was dismissed the first time, allegedly over a flap concerning undercover investigations of liquor establishments, Hall hired another police chief, Robert Evers. After the district court ruled Fairchild should be reinstated with back pay the city was faced with two police chiefs.

Last week, during a heated city council meeting, Hall informed the council he had fired both Fairchild and Evers and placed an assistant chief in charge of the six-man force.

Evers, Hall said, was fired because he was not yet under civil service with his probationary period ending Jan. 1. Had the commission ruled in favor of Fairchild, the city would have had two police chiefs again.

Fairchild was fired again in order to bring the case before the Civil Service Commission according to the court ruling.

In his letter of dismissal to Fairchild and the commission, Hall said the chief failed to keep adequate records, failed to properly investigate criminal activities, failed to check fire and bank alarm systems and failed to cooperate with city department heads in enforcing ordinances.

In addition, the mayor charged Fairchild had repeatedly exceeded his authority as chief without consulting the mayor or city council and that Fairchild showed acts of favoritism to certain individuals.

During the debate on the police department issue last week, city councilman Vernon Russell asked for, but failed to get, Hall's resignation.

Stratton Said Back To Normal

Stratton (UPI) — Most everything is back to normal after a gas leak occurred Wednesday night in this southwest Nebraska town.

Early reports had indicated that half of the town's 481 residents were removed from their homes as a precautionary measure, but later information contradicts these reports.

Deputy State Fire Marshal George Chaney of Ogallala said Thursday that only four families were evacuated as a result of the leak.

Authorities said a snowplow was working at the Miller Manufacturing plant and accidentally broke off the liquid supply line.

Chaney said the three-quarter inch line was capped at about 4:30 a.m. Thursday.

Electrical power in the affected areas was cut off, and all furnaces were shut down. But the power has been restored.

No injuries were reported as a result of the leakage.

25,800 Homestead Exemptions Claimed

An estimated 25,800 elderly Nebraskans on limited incomes had their local property tax bill reduced by an average of $161 during 1973 under the state's homestead exemption program, the State Revenue Department reported Thursday.

Property tax officials said only 4,000 applications were denied by the department; most, they said, were rejected because their income was not sufficiently low enough.

Preliminary estimates show the cost of the program for 1973 was $9.7 million, less than the $10.8 million projected price tag.

Revenue officials were unable to say how many other elderly Nebraskans might be eligible for homestead exemptions; at one time federal figures indicated as many as 60,000 Nebraskans might qualify for the program.

Under the law, those over the age of 65 can realize up to a 90% exemption from real estate taxes on the first $7,500 of actual value of their home. This year that exemption will be upped to 90% on the first $15,000 of actual value.

To qualify, elderly persons have to earn $2,800 or less if single; $3,500 or less if married and one person is over 65 years old; or $4,300 or less if married and both are over 65.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
